Plainsboro Township's Expansion Has Borough Officials Concerned

At a Monday night meeting of the Plainsboro Planning Board, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund expressed concern of mayor and council about the plan for a one million square foot office building proposed for the Forrestal Center.

However, despite the mayor's objections to "hubris on the highway," the board gave conceptual site plan approval to the development.

"The very magnitude of this one application, the largest speculative office structure ever proposed in New Jersey, has prompted us finally to move across our borders to express our concerns," she told the Plainsboro board.

Mayor Sigmund opened up the possibility of a lawsuit against Plainsboro by stating that she "must seriously consider seeking an injunction against any municipal approvals of further job-producing development in the Princeton zip code area."

Voicing concern that the mixed-income character and pleasant physical ambience of Princeton Borough will be destroyed, Mayor Sigmund outlined the points that most trouble the Borough's governing body. They are:

- A geometric increase in traffic and congestion in the Princeton corridor, which will inevitably lead to pressure to widen Alexander and Harrison Streets.
- Increasing upward economic pressure on housing and commercial stock, so that low and moderate income households and moderately priced shops are finding it more and more difficult to survive in the Borough.
- General deterioration of travel conditions in the surrounding area, particularly on Route One.

The mayor also spoke to the Plainsboro board about what its welcoming of job-producing ratables means in the context of the Mount Laurel decision, which mandates municipalities in growth areas to provide their fair share of low and moderate income housing.

"There's no such thing as a free ratable; if you enjoy the benefits of increased ratables, you undertake a proportionate burden of housing the people who will hold the jobs you produce," she said.

She compared the Mt. Laurel burden on Princeton Borough to that borne by Plainsboro.

Explaining that the Mt. Laurel number struck for Plainsboro Township was based on State Department of Labor statistics, she said that Department figures show 2941 jobs held in Plainsboro Township as of September 1982, with an average growth of 194 jobs annually in the previous decade.

Many Residents Defending New Housing Ordinance

Less than a month after the Township's affordable housing ordinance was adopted over the vociferous protests of many citizens, still other citizens are cautioning against possible changes.

At the last two Township Committee meetings citizens have risen to speak in qualified defense of the ordinance and urge Committee to "go slow" in changing some of its fundamental tenets. Their concern seems to focus on the 26.5 acre tract lying wedged between Route 206 and Cherry Valley Road in the north end of the Township that is owned by Mrs. Burnetta Peterson.

The land has been zoned for residential high density since shortly after the 1980

Peacock Inn Is Sold to New Owners; French Restaurant Will Open There

For the fifth time in its 72-year history, the Peacock Inn has changed hands. Its new owners plan to open a French restaurant at the Inn in February that will be managed by Mark Carrozza, former owner and chef at Cafe Renni in Lambertville.

The new owners are Michael Walker and his wife, Canice Lindsay, of Carson Road; Richard and Mindy Fehring of Ambler, Pa.; and Mr. Carrozza. The inn was purchased from Francis C. and Agnes Swain, who had owned and managed it since 1966.

The asking price was $800,000. Purchase price, said Mr. Walker, was "slightly less."

The new restaurant, which will feature a blend of nouvelle and haute cuisine, will be named "Le Plumet Royal." It will seat approximately 100 persons. Mr. Carrozza will be managing chef.

At the moment, a decorator, Beirne Donaldson, Inc., of Morristown, is in the process of redesigning the restaurant. The changes in decor and furnishings are part of the new owners' plans "to create a dining experience in French food in the Princeton area."

According to Mr. Walker, a native of England who has been living in Princeton for eight years, he and his partners did some market research prior to purchasing the inn. "We concluded that Princeton could benefit from another French restaurant."

Le Plumet Royal will serve both lunch and dinner. Mr. Walker said that dinner prices will be "moderate to expensive," and will probably run from $25 to $30 a person, including wine.

Balmy Winter Days Not Quite a Record

On Monday, December 17, Princeton basked in 61-degree weather, as a wave of warm air from the south (would you have believed the north?) settled in over New Jersey.

The warm weather was welcomed by Princeton's joggers, who happily stripped down to shorts and T-shirts, a la June. Shoppers and strollers were simply satisfied to be coatless.

Just days before the official beginning of winter, other parts of the state reported new records. The 64-degree temperature recorded in Atlantic City broke the old record of 61 set in 1924. And Atlantic City has been keeping records since 1874!

The Trenton-Princeton area saw a December 17 temperature of 65 degrees in 1937 and 68 degrees in 1957. And Christmas Day in 1964

The same statistics for Princton Borough show a total of 15,194 jobs in September 1982, with a growth of 420 jobs per year.

These numbers, "a patent impossibility given the relative growth patterns in those years," resulted in an absolute number under Mt. Laurel II of 548 for Plainsboro and of 1469 for Princeton Borough.

"Our situation is the inverse of Plainsboro's," said Mayor Sigmund. "We have not enjoyed the ratable increase, so we should not bear the enormous increased housing burden."

The mayor related differing statistics, these from the State Department of Transportation, which she said she discovered "in a search for an answer to the mystery of the Labor Department numbers that are determining our fate, but are so contrary to ordinary human observations."

These figures show that Plainsboro had a total job count of 4692 by the end of 1981. In addition, an inflation of figures has resulted from Princeton's sharing of its zip code with other municipalities.

Mayor Sigmund reminded the Plainsboro Planning Board that the current round of allocation of housing obligation is only the first. She said that, given Plainsboro's projected growth, the township would incur a further Mt. Laurel II obligation of around 2000 additional units in the 1990's.

In her final statement to the Plainsboro board, the mayor said that, "unless Princeton Borough can be guaranteed that it will incur no further Mt. Laurel obligation because of untrammeled growth in the corridor, we may have to sue. Anything else is simply unfair."

Reached for comment, Mayor Sigmund said that she plans to appear before other neighboring governing bodies when Princeton Borough's interests are at stake. She also confirmed that it might well be necessary to bring suit in specific cases, although she would rather there be appropriate legislation.

She noted that she is just as concerned about other problems of development, such as congestion and safety, but that "housing might give us a hook into the total question of development," by providing an opportunity to bring suit under the provisions of Mt. Laurel II.

registered a balmy 68 degrees.

But there's a cloud on the horizon, — caused by the absence of clouds, at least of the rain-producing sort. The Delaware River Basin Commission has warned that a drought alert could be in effect in New Jersey by as early as next week. Commission officials said the Delaware River is just above the drought alert mark and if it drops any lower, an alert would be implemented.

NEW DINKY STOP?

Mayor Makes Request. Responding to the closing of 300 parking spaces at Princeton Junction during upcoming construction, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund has suggested that New Jersey Transit institute an extra stop and open an extra parking lot along the Dinky line.

She made this request in a letter to New Jersey Transit Treasurer William Bouffard. Copies were sent to a number of interested parties, notably Robert Durkee and Eugene McPartland of Princeton University. The university owns the land on which the stop and the parking would be placed.

In her letter, the mayor said that the new stop and lot would serve two purposes: to alleviate some of the problem at Princeton Junction and create additional revenues for the Dinky.

She wrote that a temporary Dinky stop could be instituted at Faculty Road and an agreement could be worked out with Princeton University for use of the parking area along the railroad tracks immediately north of Faculty Road.

She asked that a permanent lot and stop be located on Route One between Washington and Alexander Roads, on the "Princeton side" of the highway, and noted that there had, for a long time, been an interim Dinky stop at Penns Neck.

Princeton University Vice President Robert Durkee said that the mayor's suggestion was "something we would be interested in thinking about, but we have no immediate reaction, positive or negative."

He added that the university would give further thought to the suggestion if New Jersey Transit showed an interest in going ahead with it.

The university has agreed, however, to include Princeton Borough mayor and council in its upcoming discussions of Dinky station access and parking. The university recently purchased the station from New Jersey Transit for $893,700.

In response to the elimination of 300 spaces at Princeton Junction during construction of the new station, New Jersey Transit is planning to set up 170 spaces by the end of January.

Fifty of these will be permanent and will be created by restriping lines. The other 120 will be temporary.

A continuing series of meetings between New Jersey Transit and officials of West Windsor is planned in order to discuss alternative ways of dealing with the parking problem at the station.

Princeton Law Firm Represents the Developers In 14 Mt. Laurel Suits Against Municipalities

PREPARING CASE: Jeffrey Hall, left, and Henry Hill pore over a large-scale map of Princeton Township on which the sites designated by the new affordable housing ordinance are in red. The legal and planning team for the plaintiff-developers bringing suit against the Township zoning ordinances will use many such visual aids to flash before the judge as they attempt to show the Township's ordinance is unworkable.

Across town from the law offices where Princeton Township Attorney Edwin W. Schmierer is preparing the Township's defense of the Mount Laurel suit brought against it by two developers, equally fervent preparations are underway on behalf of the plaintiff-developers in that suit.

The firm is Brener Wallack and Hill on Chambers Street, presently representing more than 14 Mount Laurel litigants. Henry Hill is the attorney for Calton Homes, the Freehold-based developer that seeks to build 1,280 housing units, 20 percent of them in the lower income category, on the Ferdinand White property off Mercer Street.

TOPICS Of The Town

Jeffrey Hall of the firm Strauss Wills O'Neill & Voorhees, just around the corner at 32 Nassau Street, is representing Princeton Ridge, Inc., subsidiary of Dravo Corp. of Pittsburgh, the other plaintiff in the case. Princeton Ridge had long sought to build at higher densities than permitted by Township zoning in the environmentally sensitive ridge area (Cherry Hill and Ridgeview Roads off Route 206). Last year the company dropped its zoning suit against the Township in order to join Calton Homes in the Mount Laurel suit.

Mount Laurel Expert. Mr. Hill and Mr. Hall have enlisted Carl Bisgaier as a third attorney arguing on behalf of the plaintiffs before Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli when the case comes to trial in the latter part of January in Toms River. Judge Serpentelli is the judge assigned to hear Mount Laurel litigation arising in central Jersey by the N.J. State Supreme Court.

Mr. Bisgaier is a Cherry Hill lawyer who argued the Camden County Regional Legal Services case that resulted in Mount Laurel I. He is experienced in Mount Laurel litigation, a legal and planning arena in which few have yet developed expertise although their numbers are growing.

Mr. Bisgaier has also decided to try his own hand as a developer. He is one third of a partnership called Affordable Living Corp. that brought an exclusionary zoning suit against West Windsor Township last summer. An out-of-court settlement was reached permitting the company to build about 1,465 units with a 20 percent set-aside for low and moderate income buyers.

The Brener Wallack and Hill firm is rapidly developing a specialty in Mount Laurel litigation. Area maps and development plans crowd the tables and line the walls of Mr. Hill's office. On one wall is a full blown map of New Jersey stuck with more than 100 little blue flags, each representing Mount Laurel litigation in process.

Orange flags, far fewer in number, indicate a settlement has been reached between developer and municipality. A handful of orange flags with blue circles are pinned to those municipalities whose fair share number has been certified as being in compliance with Mount Laurel by the court.

On a table in Mr. Hill's office is a small white stuffed Steiff seal, a momento to his oft-quoted remark: "In Mount Laurel lawsuits, municipalities are like Canadian baby harp seals; they can slither and bleat but only for a short time."

From its lengthy roster of attorneys, Brener Wallack and Hill has assigned six lawyers and its own in-house planner to full time work on Mount Laurel cases. The firm has developed a four-page memo outlining procedures for developers trying to decide whether or not to bring a Mount Laurel suit against a municipality in which they own acreage.

"It is an expensive process to come in and decide you want to initiate Mount Laurel litigation," Mr. Hill says. A client must amass quantities of preliminary documents relating to the municipality's master plans and ordinances, soil surveys, natural resource maps, state 208 water quality facilities plans and numerous other similar studies and inventories. The client must also hire experts in planning, civil engineering, traffic, land values and environmental issues.

For the suit against Princeton, three planners have been hired to argue that Princeton Township's newly adopted affordable housing ordinance will not in fact produce the housing it has been designed to facilitate. The three are Harvey Moskowitz, Ken Mizerny and Richard Coppola.

In addition, Richard Redding, an economist and statistician, will attempt to show, among other things, that the fair share number of 650 around which the ordinance has been constructed is based in part on a study that is in error. This is a report by the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry that shows no employment growth in the Township between 1973 and 1983. If Mr. Redding is successful, the net effect could be to increase Princeton's fair share way beyond what the Township's housing consultants have calculated.

Mr. Hill likens Mount Laurel litigation to an elaborate chess game. He has written that "players who are not ready, willing and able to spend substantial sums of money ... should not play."

Chess Game. Other members of the Calton Homes-Princeton Ridge, Hill-Hall-Bisgaier team include engineers who have analyzed the sewer capacity of the White tract and the traffic carrying capacity of the surrounding roads; and an appraiser who has analyzed the probabilities of whether or not the Township can acquire its proposed affordable housing sites at the costs it projects in order to make the ordinance work.

Mr. Hill likens Mount Laurel litigation to an elaborate chess game. He has written that "players who are not ready, willing and able to spend substantial sums of money and wait an indefinite length of time for a resolution of their dispute should not play. Most of the tactics of this game involve ascertaining whether or not your opponent has the staying power and funding to play the game out to its end or whether he can be expected to forfeit at an earlier stage of play.

"The opening moves in an exclusionary zoning lawsuit consist of propounding of massive quantities of interrogatories and the taking of many depositions in order to foul the opposition by getting him to reveal the strategies he will use during the lawsuit. This gambit, which is called 'discovery' by lawyers, is also very expensive because it consumes vast amounts of attorneys' time and the time of various expert witnesses."

He continues: "The function of discovery is to separate out the serious from the non-serious players. Perhaps as many as one-third of exclusionary zoning lawsuits are settled during the discovery process when the teams begin to understand the magnitude of the game they have embarked upon."

If the stakes are high, so are the rewards. As Mr. Hill says, "If I can win the chess game my employer wins handsomely. If we can get the ordinance invalidated, we get a big reward — anything we want on the White tract." Later in the interview he modifies that to mean "any density that's not environmentally hazardous" and likens it to treble damages awarded in anti-trust suits.

Involved in Bedminster. Mr. Hill represents Hills Development Co. which the court awarded a bonus density of 10 housing units per acre for its 128-acre site in Bedminister in exchange for setting aside 20 percent of the project for lower cost housing. The order requiring Bedminster to change its zoning from five-acre minimum lots to high density townhouses to provide its fair share of the lower income housing needs in the Somerset region followed 11 years of trials and appeals which cost Bedminster $1.5 million.

Mr. Hill had originally represented Johns-Manville,

"Princeton is going to have to bite the bullet and rezone some areas for high density."

which bought 1,600 acres in Bedminster for its headquarters. The company decided to move to Denver and sought a buyer or co-venturer and sued to change the large lot zoning

Need for Housing. There have been 800 applicants, Mr. Hill says, for the 260 low and moderate income units that are almost ready for occupancy. When it is complete, Bedminster Hills will have 5,200 housing units in three different price ranges on 1,600 acres at varying densities of from 8 to 25. The two-square mile area will be home to 15,000 people, the largest development in the state.

Citing an "unbelievable pent up housing demand," Mr. Hill believes that "Princeton is going to have to bite the bullet and rezone some areas for high density." He says he is "as confident on this case as any other case the office (Brener Wallack and Hill) is handling that the site (the White Farm) is appropriate (for higher density) and the ordinance which we are required to attack won't withstand a fully litigated challenge."

Mr. Hill continues: "Princeton is experimenting in a novel approach with lower densities than ever permitted before, and a funding mechanism not authorized before. It is running a number of risks in subjecting the ordinance to this kind of challenge. This involves statistical warfare."

A Princeton resident himself since 1965, whose grandfather taught at Princeton University as one of Woodrow Wilson's first preceptors, Mr. Hill feels that municipalities became "parochial" under home rule in violation of the constitution. Towns permitted rateables without thinking where people drawn by the jobs the rateables created were going to live.

Those Who Are Excluded. He speaks of California, where a density of 15-30 units per acre is not unusual and where, he says, there is a lot more open space. Here, he notes, housing costs have increased more rapidly than incomes with the result that "very few new families can afford what we have viewed as our birthright. The people who are excluded are not those whom we are getting emotional about. They are teachers, firemen, librarians, our kids.

"I think the courts were more right than wrong. Whether the method is right is debatable. It is hard to justify a system in which land use decisions are made by the courts and by who spends the most money in litigation.

"But if the alternative is parochial home rule where people don't give a damn about the office buildings they put up not being accessible to where people can afford to live, I'll take the court decision. The courts said if you provide employment growth, you must meet housing needs, especially for low and moderate income people.

"They don't mind if my clients make a lot of money in the process. No one is going to litigate unless they have a market."

Princeton Background. Mr. Hill's mother grew up in Princeton, daugher of classics professor Edward Capps. His parents met when his father was head of the American Express office in Athens. He himself grew up in Paris but attended American boarding schools and Amherst College. His parents lived on Boudinot Street in the 1950s, and he says he was in the original class at Miss Mason's School.

After a stint in the Army and law school at Stanford, he joined Mason Griffin and Moore in 1965 (now Mason Griffin & Pearson of which Mr. Schmierer is a member), becoming a partner in 1970. He left in 1980 to form Brener Wallack and Hill.

Mr. Hill sums up Mount Laurel this way: "The New Jersey Supreme Court has decided the best way to get affordable housing built in the face of subdivision and zoning controls is to get the private sector to litigate with the towns for a builder's remedy. It is an artificial device to test municipal ordinances, with a big prize to the developer for bringing the suit. There are not enough public advocates to bring the suits, so the builders are rewarded for doing so instead."

"They [the courts] don't mind if my clients make a lot of money in the process. No one is going to litigate unless they have a market."

GARBAGE IS TOPIC

Of New Ordinance. Borough Council last week passed a new ordinance that establishes basic rules for the removal of garbage and refuse from commercial and business establishments and multiple dwellings.

No longer may such establishments place garbage cans in the public right of way. In fact, no garbage receptacle may be placed so much as within view of the public right of way more than six hours prior to the day of pick-up. And empty containers better not hang around too long either — they must be moved out of view from the public right of way within ten hours of collection.

The ubiquitous dumpster, too, is addressed in the ordinance. Dumpsters must be cleaned, rinsed, and sanitized at regular intervals. They must also be closed when not in use, secured from overturning, and maintained in good condition.

In addition, dumpsters must be kept out of view from the public right of way, which means they have to be screened or fenced. The only times dumpsters may appear in view is when they are being emptied.

The ordinance also decrees that retail and wholesale food establishments must use containers other than plastic bags for the disposal and temporary storage of garbage, refuse, and other waste.

Borough Council member Irv Urken said that this ordinance goes hand in hand with the Borough law that requires owners of establishments selling take-out food to provide trash cans. "They both deal with the way people get rid of trash," he said.

He added that the ordinance is meant to control problems such as containers being placed in the public right of way and sometimes rolling into the middle of the street; ripped-open trash bags lying open in the street; and dumpsters that are dirty, rusted and cannot be closed.

Many of the provisions of this ordinance are implied in the Borough Health Code. However, the health code is often couched in general rather than specific language and does not specify means of enforcement and penalties. Both of these areas are covered in the new ordinance.

NOT LIKE TV

Driver Discovers. A driver who tried to elude a police chase told police, when finally apprehended early Thursday morning, that one reason why he had done it was he always watches the show "The Rockford Files" on television and Jim Rockford always outruns the police. (It's fortunate he's not an A Team fan.)

The one who discovered that real life does not mirrnr television is John Carapella, 21, of Cornwell Heights, Pa. He has been charged with following too closely, two stop sign vinlations, running a red light, reckless driving and trying to elude police.

His passenger, Francis Ehling, 21, of Yardley, Pa. has been charged with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana. Both are scheduled to appear in Borough court January 16.

The ineident began shortly after 1 when Ptl. Donald Dawson and Ptl. Ralph Terracciano on patrol on Nassau Street observed a brown Buick in the opposite lane tailgating a car near the intersection of Washington Road. The officers made a U-turn and as they approached the suspect ear it made a left turn onto Moran Avenue at a high rate of speed.

It then turned right onto Spruce, went through a stop sign at Chestnut Street, and another at Chestnut and Hamilton. It continued right on Hamilton where it turned off its lights and ran a red light at Hamilton and Harrison.

The fleeing car then turned onto Stanley Avenue where it went out of control, jumped a curb and traveled some 60 feet across a lawn before coming to rest.

After the two officers told the driver and his passenger to get out of the car, they found a pipe used to smoke marijuana under the front seat.

When asked why he had tried to escape, Carapella, the driver, replied that he had had a couple of beers and thought he would be arrested for that. The officers, however, deemed that he was sober. Carapella then told Ptl. Dawson he had another reason and described his watching the Rockford File on TV.

Juveniles Charged. Another minor motor vehicle infraction has led to charges against three juveniles.

Shortly before 1 Friday morning, the same two officers observed a car with one headlight and a noisy muffler on Nassau Street. They stopped it on Bayard Lane. As the officers approached the car, they saw a passenger in the rear seat attempt to hide a bottle of beer inside his coat.

The officers also found a partially-burned marijuana cigarette in the center console. A second passenger had two bottles of beer in her possession. When police asked the driver to step from the car they patted him down and uncovered a large folding knife and a partially-consumed bottle of beer in his coat. The three, all juveniles, were taken to police headquarters.

Police charged the driver, a 17-year-old Hamilton Township resident, with possession of a weapon, possession of marijuana and possession of alcoholic beverage. Barbara Tuck, 19, of Mercerville and Brian Burns, 18, of Trenton, were both charged as minors in possession of alcohol. All face a January 16 hearing in Borough court.

Palmer Square Carol Sing

The Trinity-All Saints' Concerts Committee will sponsor caroling Saturday begining at 3 p.m.

Carolers should assemble by the kiosk at Palmer Square, where John Bertalot, director of music at Trinity, will lead the singing, accompanied by a brass quintet.

The public and area choirs and congregations are invited to participate. The singing will last about an hour and will be followed by refreshments in the Nassau Inn. For further information call 924-2277.

POLICE CHARGES FOLLOW

Check Transaction Here. An attempt to cash a forged check at the N.J. National Bank here on Thursday led to the involvment of Borough police, an investigation and subsequent charges against a 33-year-old Union resident.

Ronald E. Kranz has been charged with two counts each of forgery, theft by deception, issuing bad checks and one of hindering his apprehension. He has been remanded to the Mercer County Jail in lieu of $4,000 bail, pending his scheduled court appearance here January 2.

The investigation conducted by Ptl. Chris Boutote and Det. John Reading also uncovered a counterfeit N.J. driver's license and stolen birth certificate in Kranz's possession.

The complicated and twisted case involved, Chief Michael Carnevale said, depositing Nevada checks in accounts in various bank branches in the area. These deposits ranged from $100 to $1,450. The investigation revealed that the Nevada accounts had been closed out.

THEFT REPORT

Another Reindeer Stolen. A second $600 fibreglas reindeer was stolen last week from the roof of the Princeton Shopping Center — this one from a different location — and another item in the news last week was taken: a green and white trash can was stolen from in front of Landau's on Nassau Street. Police described the can, valued at $325, as privately-owned.

Taken from a student's room in Hamilton Hall on the Princeton University campus between 9:40 Saturday morning and 9:10 that evening were a portable stereo and articles of clothing with a combined value of $635. A person who was allowed to stay overnight in the room is a suspect in the theft.

Another university student left her room in Pyne Hall unattended and unlocked for 20 minutes Friday morning and during her absence someone took jewelry worth $770 from the top of her dresser. Included were a pearl necklace, gold chain, watch and school ring.

Joining the list of theft victims was another university student who left her guitar in the cafe area of Murray Dodge Hall. It is valued at $350.

An unlocked car parked in the owner's driveway on Westcott Road was entered last week and the thief took from the glove compartment a flashlight, tool kit, sunglasses and pair of gloves. The items are valued at $47.

Another unlocked car parked on Valley Road was entered overnight last week and the contents of its glove compartment strewn about the seat. Township police report, however, that nothing was taken.

STUDENT IS STRUCK

By Car On Alexander St. A Princeton University student was injured last week when he ran into the side of a car on Alexander Street.

The victim, John Allen, 19, 141 Holder Hall, was taken by ambulance to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated for lacerations of the scalp and right arm. He was then tranported to McCosh Imfirmry on campus for observation.

According to police, the student had run between two cars parked along the curb and then between two more cars stopped in a line of traffic before running into the side of a car operated by Michael Petrizzi of Englishtown. Mr. Petrizzi told Sgt. Peter Hanley that he had just turned off Mercer Street in heavy traffic when all of a sudden he heard a loud bang and his windshield shattered.

A witness told the officer that the victim had been wearing dark clothing. Sgt. Hanley issued Mr. Allen a summons for not crossing in a crosswalk.

Three-Car Collison. A driver and her passenger were injured last week when her car was involved in a three-car accident at the intersection of Valley Road and Witherspoon Street.

FREE PARKING! The bright plastic bags placed over every meter in downtown Princeton by young members of the Interact Club remind shoppers that parking is free again this Saturday. A cooperative effort on the part of Borough Council and the Borough Merchants Association has brought a holiday gift of free parking on the two Saturdays before Christmas.

According to Sgt. Mario Musso, the investigating officer, a small 1982 sedan driven by Linda Sheldon, 40, 140 Laurel Road, heading south on Witherspoon Street, was driving through the intersection when it was struck in the side by a second small car operated by Linda R. Adams, 43, of Trenton. The impact caused the Sheldon car to flip over on its right side.

The Adams car continued on and hit the front of a car stopped at the Valley Road stop sign operated by Douglas K. Vinez, 27, of Winston Salem, N.C.

Mrs. Sheldon was taken to Princeton Medical Center and treated for lacerations of the arm; her passenger, Casey Sheldon, 13, was treated at the hospital for minor injuries.

Ms. Adams told Sgt. Musso that she had seen the stop sign but had misjudged the braking distance. She was issued a summons for failing to stop.

TAKES CAMERA FILM

Yardville Man Charged. Gary A. Sereni, 32, of Yardville, has been charged with shoplifting 20 rolls of Polaroid film and 12 rolls of color film from the Acme Market in the Princeton Shopping Center. The film is valued at $252.16.

The suspect was allegedly observed taking the film by the manager, and was later arrested by off-duty Patrolman David Funk. He was taken to police headquarters, charged and later released.

An employee of the Nassau Inn has been charged by Borough police with theft and forgery.

Robert Wiggins, 29, of Trenton, has been charged by Det. Randy Sutton with stealing two checks in the amounts of $61.42 and $77.93 from the front desk at the Inn and later forging and cashing them at the Princeton Bank and Trust Co. He was later released and is scheduled to appear in Borough court January 2.

SWASTIKA PAINTED

On Fence in Shaving Cream. A swastika was drawn with canned shaving cream last week on a stockade fence on a Snowden Lane property. The word "Fresh" was also written, police said.

In a similar act of criminal mischief discovered two days later, a large swastika was drawn — again with shaving cream — on a large tree in the front lawn of a Braeburn Drive home which backs up to the Snowden Lane property.

The incidents are under investigation by Twonship police who report no suspects.

JOGGER VICTIM AGAIN

Of Flasher. A Princeton University student jogging last week along the tow path next to Lake Carnegie east of Harrison Street was the victim of a man who exposed himself. Police report the same jogger had been victimized on two other occasions.

The jogger continued running while the suspect, police said, drove off toward U.S. 1 in a white Toyota pickup truck. He is described as a white male in his 20s, six-feet tall weighing about 200 pounds. He has dark curly hair and a full moustache.

GAS LEAK BLAMED

For Car Fire. An apparent gas leak from a fuel pump is being blamed for a fire last week that damaged the engine compartment of a 1970 Plymouth.

The driver, Joseph Mann of Toledo, Ohio, told police he had turned into a driveway on Haslet Avenue and he saw a glow coming from underneath the car as he got out. He opened the hood and discovered the engine on fire.

Firemen from Engine Company No. 1 responded and put out the fire.

NINE ARE FINED

For Speeding. Nine Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough court for speeding.

Paying $60 each are Carol Stewart, 60 Hart Avenue, Hopewell; Sara Mulligan, 47 Murray Place; Linda F. Sanson, 89 Cleveland Lane; Ralph W. Freedman, 18 Wheatsheaf Lane; Mary E. Chou, 4 Kean Court Road.

Mark L. Zaininger, 9E Shore Drive, and John E. Hamel, The Great Road, were each fined $75 by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. for racing on Nassau Street.

Janet K. Haring, 75 Rosedale Lane, paid $60 for a red light violation, while Mehmet S. Ergin, 1T Hibben Apartments, paid the same amount for careless driving.

Inn, will take place Monday at 5:15 p.m. Carolers will gather at the Arts Council of Princeton, 102 Witherspoon Street, for a procession to the Palmer Square Green. They will be joined by a brass band at the Christmas tree.

The town cryer, Rip Pellaton, will gather the carolers. Mayor Barbara Sigmund will guide the procession, and folksinger Caroline Moseley and former Borough Mayor Bob Cawley will lead the caroling.

Carolers are asked to bring their own candles. Song sheets will be provided. At the end of the caroling, the Nassau Inn will serve cider and cookies to all.

There will be a special children-only round of "Jingle Bells." Children are encouraged to bring along bells to ring while they sing.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY SET

As Fundraiser. Princeton Rep Company says it is establishing "an irreverent tradition" with its second annual New Year's Eve Cabaret Fundraiser.

Producers Betty Fenton and Victoria Liberatori have planned an evening of song, dance and midnight delights at the Arts Council of Princeton, 102 Witherspoon Street, on December 31.

Rich Rein, publisher of U.S. 1, will emcee the evening's entertainment. Music, comedy and dance acts will include Derry Light and Dick Swain performing songs from the Broadway stage, songwriters Jim Beckerman and Andy Seiler with their original off-beat material, Renee Riddle and David Stanley doing jazz, tango and tap routines, and Blues Progression, an R&B band. Barbara Sigmund, mayor of Princeton Borough, will reprise her musical tribute to the New Year and lead a midnight toast.

Refreshments, set-ups and party favors will be supplied. Patrons may bring the drink of their choice. Films and visual effects complement the stage set, a graphic rendition of Princeton "camp and circumstance," by designer Karl Lessig.

Ticket purchases by phone and mail are $25 per person. Please make checks payable to PRC, and mail to PRC, 24 Chestnut Street, Princeton N.J. 08542 by Friday, December 21. Ticket orders by phone must be picked up between the hours of 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on December 31 at the box office in the Arts Council Building, 102 Witherspoon Street, Greene Street entrance. For phone reservations, call 921-3682 or 924-9559.

All reservations not picked up by 7:30 p.m. the evening of the performance will be released. Tickets at the door after 7:30 p.m. on December 31 are $30 per person. All contributions are tax-deductible. Doors open at 8 p.m., the show begins at 9.

All are invited.

Famine Relief Fund

The Princeton Area Chapter, American Red Cross, has begun raising money for the African Famine Relief Campaign which will be launched by the American Red Cross in January. The national goal is to raise a minimum of $5 million.

The Red Cross League, composed of 135 national Red Cross and Red Crescent societies, is presently conducting famine-relief operations in 14 African nations. On a day-to-day basis, it is providing food, water and medical aid to the most vulnerable groups: children, pregnant women and nursing mothers.

In addition, the League is coordinating a variety of long-range projects aimed at reducing the impact of future droughts.

Those interested in donating money may send checks directly to the Princeton Area Chapter office of the American Red Cross, 182 South Harrison Street, Princeton, N.J. 08540. The donation should be marked for the African Relief Campaign.

Freeholder Hours Challenged.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Mercer County Women's Political Caucus is committed to expanding the impact women have on the political system and to increasing the number of women in elective office. Mercer County numbers many experienced women serving capably at the municipal level, where meetings are held at night, and we believe a change in Freeholder schedule would find more women able and willing to run for county office.

There have been significant numbers of women serving on the Union County Freeholder Board which has its agenda meetings as well as regular meetings at night. Here in Mercer, our Freeholder Board has voted to continue a schedule which requires attendance at 11 a.m. on alternate Thursdays and 7:30 p.m. on the following Tuesdays. This truly limits the pool of potential candidates for that board!

Relatively few women hold the kind of managerial or professional positions which would enable them to consider serving under current scheduling which requires attendance during both daytime and evening. All meetings of the Board of Freeholders should be held in the evening, a change which will open up new opportunities for women as citizens to serve in county government.

A Matter of Taste?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

A while ago, seeing how many franchises and chain stores were moving into Princeton, I joked to a friend that, to conform to its new image, the name of Palmer Square should be changed to Tiger Mall — or, since Cute is in, Tiger Maul Now I am convinced of it.

Last Saturday morning, I was amazed to find that every parking meter on Palmer Square and adjacent streets glistened with a plastic orange bag announcing "Two Hours Free Parking, compliments of the Borough of Princetnn and the Princeton Merchants Association "

This gesture, made, no douht, with the hest capitalistic and spirit-of-the-season intentions, unnerved me and I rushed through my errands, relieved not to find an "I luv Palmer Square" bumper sticker on my car when I returned.

Disturbed hy my ungrateful, perhaps Scrooge-like, reactinn to this municipal munificence, I mentioned it to a friend. She told me of her experience in a nearby town not many Christmases ago, when she returned to her car long after the meter ran out.

On the windshield, instead of a ticket, wns a pretty holiday card from the township saying that in the spirit of the holiday, the police were not giving out tickets. This struck me as a lovely gesture, certainly more subtle and festive than the plastic orange hoods which have been lining the streets all year to prevent parking in construction sites.

Mayhe it is just a matter of taste, or mayhe rows of orange dots just bring out the Scrooge in me.

donated to the Crisis Ministry, which will distribute the mittens and caps and find the tree a home for the holidays.

With the creation of the Mitten Tree, the youngsters continue a tradition started several years ago at Trinity-All Saints Nursery School, which this year joined with Nassau Co-op to form the new Nassau Nursery School on Terhune.

The Crisis Ministry, located in the basement of Nassau Presbyterian Church, is asking for contributions to make this a happier holiday season for those in need. Crisis Ministry is 1-5 p.m. each day. For more information about the ministry, call Carol Kerbel at 921-2135.

MAKE A CHILD HAPPY

Support Toys for Tots Drive. The annual U.S. Marine Corps Reserves Toys for Tots drive is under way with a goal of collecting many hundreds of toys for underprivileged children in the Princeton area.

Again this year, Rent-a-Wreck has joined the Marines to co-sponsor the campaign.

Dave Silvester, of the Princeton Rent-a-Wreck office on Nassau Street, points out that the holiday season isn't very bright for many unfortunate youngsters. "Nothing makes kids happier than getting gifts at this time of the year. We're pleased to be cooperating with the local Marine Corps Reserves unit, and we're looking forward to a successful campaign," Mr. Silvester said.

Those wishing to contribute to the Toys for Tots drive can deposit their gifts (each toy must be new and unwrapped) at Rent-a-Wreck, 255 Nassau Street, between 8 and 6 Monday through Friday. For more information, call 921-7066.

MUPPET TIME

At Computer Store. The Muppets are coming to Clancy-Paul Computer Stores on Saturday, December 22.

Christopher Cerf, software designer and creative consultant to Henson Associates and son of the late Bennett Cerf, will be at Clancy-Paul, Princeton Shopping Center, from 2:30 to 4 p.m., to demonstrate Muppet Learning Keys. The keys are designed to teach fundamental skills in computer use and in reading and reasoning through adventures and funny situations.

TOWN HONORED

For Preserving Trees. West Windsor Township has received the "Preservation" award from the New Jersey Shade Tree Federation, a 60-year-old organization dedicated to the preservation of trees. This is the first township to be so honored.

The award was given in response to the Township "Green Belt" plan, which has become a central part of West Windsor's Master Plan.

The Green Belt plan designates 2,038 acres, representing 12 percent of West Windsor's total area, as "Greenbelt." Although much of this land is along streams in the flood hazard areas, other sections, measuring a minimum of 400 feet in width, connect all of these areas through open lands establishing natural stage corridors.

The Green Belt plan has saved hundreds of trees in the Township since its adoption and will result in hundreds more being saved. In addition, thousands of trees will be

70TH YEAR MARKED

Of Dorothea House. Late in 1914, 70 years ago, Princeton's Italian immigrant community greeted the opening of Dorothea's House with awe and appreciation.

The newly arrived "Children of Italy," in the throes of adjusting to radically new surroundings, were moved by the realization that someone cared enough about them and their families to finance the construction and operation of a community center "primarily (for) those of the Italian race."

The Dorothea of Dorothea's House was the 23-year-old daughter of poet, diplomat and University professor Dr Henry Van Dyke. She was married to Guy Richards McLane, a New York City stock broker, and she died in childbirth on February 24, 1912. Her father and her husband built Dorothea's House as a living memorial to this young woman who had a longstanding interest and concern for the well-being of Princeton's Italian immigrant families.

A Dorothea Van Dyke McLane Association was established and incorporated in 1916. The Association entrusted a board of trustees with the administrative responsibilities of managing and carrying out the stated purposes of the house as stipulated by Mr. McLane and Dr. Van Dyke. In addition to her father and husband, the initial members of the board included her brother, Tertius Van Dyke, Bayard Stockton and Henry I. Parsons.

Later, the number of board members was increased, and today there are ten members. On the entrance walls there are two bronze plaques, one inscribed in English, the other in Italian. Both say, "This is the House of Dorothea Van Dyke McLane, 'Ray of Light,' 'Song of Joy,' 'Heart of Love,' Who Befriended the Children of Italy and Worked for the Welfare of Princeton. This Memorial is Given by Her Husband For The Same Cause." The date is 1914.

From the begining, and for the seven decades that have followed, Princeton's Italian families have made use of the varied educational, cultural, civic and athletic programs at Dorothea's House. Elinor K. Purves was headworker at the house for more than 25 years, aided by volunteers from the Princeton University student body and members of Nassau Presbyterian Church.

Many of Princeton's business, governmental, cultural, educational and civic leaders of Italian heritage benefitted during the formative periods of their lives from the programs sponsored by Dorothea's House. Today, most of the first floor pruvides space for a weekly class in Italian language under the tutelage of Carmen Prezioso of Princeton High School.

It is also the meeting place for organizations such as Roma Eterna and its Ladies Auxiliary, Anthony Perna and Caroline Santoro, respective presidents; Lega Marconi Lodge, Sons of Italy, Josephine D'Andrea, president; Boat and Beagle Club, Anthony Stefanelli, president; Princeton Soccer Club, Anthony Santoro, president; and the Central Jersey Chapter, American Italian Historical Association, Robert B. Immordino, president.

The second floor is occupied hy the Princeton office of the Family Service Agency. The basement area houses the YMCA Toddlers Group.

The present officers of the board of Trustees of the Dorothea Van Dyke Association include Moore Gates Jr., president; Joseph R. Nini, vice president; Paul Cucci, secretary; John A. Procaccino, treasurer. Other members are Joseph L. Bolster Jr., Michael F. Carnevale, A.C. Reeves Hicks, A Perry Morgan, Arthur P. Morgan and Eleanor Pinelli.

The board is looking forward to the 75th anniversary of the npening of Dorothea's House in 1989 and are discussing suggestions to mark that celebration appropriately. The publication of a complete history of the community center is among items under consideration.

Dorothea's House is situated within the boundaries of Princeton Borough's Historic District which was entered into the State and National Historic Registry in June, 1975.

As in two previous years, the YWCA agreed to stitch and knit a complete original outfit for each doll as a gift which the Welfare Department and Salvation Army, which provided the dolls, would distribute as part of their holiday efforts.

The dolls range from a bride, complete with pearls, to an Andean maiden, to Little Red Riding Hood and her sister — all different and colorful. The costuming, done by staff and volunteers of the YWCA, received a strong assist from the Artisan's Guild, the YW's craft cooperative.

TWO TO BE HONORED

On Alumni Day, Donald Rumsfeld, president and chief executive officer of G. D. Searle & Co. since 1977, and Robert Venturi, a distinguished architectural theorist and practitioner, will receive Princeton University's highest alumni awards at the 70th annual midwinter meeting of the university's Alumni Association, to be held in Jadwin Gymnasium on Saturday, February 16.

Mr. Rumsfeld, a member of the Princeton class of 1954, will receive the Woodrow Wilson Award, given annually to a Princetonian who distinguishes himself or herself "in the nation's service."

Mr. Venturi, who earned his A.B. degree summa cum laude in 1947 and went on to receive the M.F.A. degree in 1950, will receive the university's James Madison Medal, an annual award recognizing alumni of the Graduate School who have distinguished themselves in their professions, advanced the cause of graduate education, or achieved a record of outstanding public service.

Both of the honorees will lecture during the morning of Alumni Day. At 10:15 a.m. in Alexander Hall, Mr. Rumsfeld, former Secretary of Defense and White House Chief of Staff, former member of Congress and U.S. Ambassador to NATO, will speak on "U.S. Leadership in World Affairs." Concurrently, in the Betts Auditorium at the School of Architecture, Mr. Venturi, the founding partner of Venturi, Rauch and Scott Brown, will discuss "Current Directions in Architecture."

Alumni Day began in 1915 when about 100 alumni joined in what the Princeton Alumni Weekly called "an intellectual pilgrimage to their Alma Mater," highlighted by a meeting of the Alumni Association. Today, the tradition is stronger than ever. The Alumni Day meeting takes place on the main floor of Jadwin Gymnasium, in conjunction with a luncheon for more than 1,500 returning alumni and their guests. Other highlights of the occasion typically include the recognition of outstanding undergraduates and reports from alumni leaders.

In addition to the lectures by Mr. Rumsfeld and Mr. Venturi, returning alumni, their guests, and members of the university community will be able to choose between lectures by W. Robert Connor, professor of classics, who will discuss the effects of landscape and climate on the course of ancient Greek civilization;

Also, Lorraine J. Daston, assistant professor of history and history of science, who will explain how the perceived boundary between the natural and the supernatural shifted from the 16th to late 18th centuries; and Harvey S. Rosen, professor of economics, who will discuss the theories behind the tax law revision proposals Congress is studying and predict what their practical impact on taxpayers will be.

Still other lectures are scheduled for Friday evening, February 15, and Saturday afternoon, at 4. At 8 p.m. on Friday in 101 McCormick Hall, "The Cathedral Engineers" will be the topic for Robert Mark, professor of civil engineering and architecture. He will discuss the trial-and-error development of medieval cathedral construction and show how

NEW PROGRAM

By Foundation. An international fellowship program to strengthen teaching and research in art history and related humanistic studies has been announced by The J. Paul Getty Trust and the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

Twenty postdoctoral fellowships of $25,000 each will he awarded in 1985-86 to support outstanding young scholars whose achievements show promise of significant future contribution to scholarship in this field.

The program, supported by a grant of more than a half million dollars from The J. Paul Getty Trust, is designed to free the most able scholars for a full year of research and writing at leading centers for the humanistic study of art both here and abroad.

The fellowships will be awarded each year along two parallel lines. Half will be allocated to ten American institutions chosen as especially distinguished centers of research on art history, and ten awards will be made through an open international competition. Those eligible are scholars in art history and related humanistic studies who will have received their doctoral degrees no more than six years from the time the fellowship would be held.

Princeton University has been designated as one of the centers of research. John Shearman, chairman of Princeton's Department of Art and Archaeology, is one of the art historians named to a supervisory committee to advise both components of the program.

Princeton will designate, under guidelines laid down by the program, one Getty Postdoctoral Fellow of its choice for the 1985-86 academic year. Potential candidates may request application forms from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, P.O. Box 642, Princeton, N.J. 08542. Program director is Judith A. Himes. The first cohort of winners will he announced during the week of March 4, 1985.

Housing

Master Plan when it was so designated by ordinance. It is one of a number of RH sites specified in the new affordable housing ordinance for development by a proposed Housing Trust at a density of 12 units per acre, one half in low and moderate income units, one half in moderately-priced market units generating profit to help subsidize the lower income units.

On November 19, the night Township Committee adopted the affordable housing ordinance over considerable protest from residents in the eastern section of town, Committee acceded to the request of Mrs. Peterson's husband's attorney and reversed an earlier decision to eliminate a provision that has allowed a density of eight units to the acre in R-H zones if the developer built "median-priced" units.

Since November 19 there have been these developments in regard to the Peterson tract:

• The Planning Board has voted to ask Township Committee to reverse itself again and remove the option of eight-to-the-acre median-priced units on the R-H sites, the Peterson tract included. According to Duggan Kimball, who made the recommendation at a recent Planning Board meeting, median-priced units will not meet the Township's Mount Laurel obligation for its fair share of low and moderate income housing.

Moreover, Mr. Kimball is concerned that the option will mean that developers will rush to build these somewhat higher-priced units on the very tracts that are needed for lower income Mount Laurel units before the Township can get its Housing Fund in place. Median-priced units are not pegged to income, he points out.

The option was put into the original R-H zone ordinance in the days before Mount Laurel as a way to prevent high priced units from beng built on very small lots and to encourage housing in a middle price range, according to Allen Porter, Planning Board Attorney. Mr. Porter told the Planning Board that although it has recommended removing that option from the R-H sites in order to meet its Mount Laurel obligation, the board may wish to consider median-priced units for other zones in the Township.

Township Committee has not taken up this recommendation from the Planning Board, nor even had it as an agenda item. Presumably it is waiting for other recommendations from the board, which was asked to reconsider certain of the selected sites and the overall density of the affordable housing ordinance by a motion made immediately after the vote to adopt on November 19.

Meanwhile, Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike has publicly acknowledged at Township Committee meetings having met with top members of the Princeton Community Housing board to discuss that non-profit organization's interest in being the developer of low income housing on the Peterson site. Mayor Pike says, however, that there are numerous problems still to be worked out and that nothing definitive has resulted from the discussions.

Dr. Chester Peterson, whose wife owns the 26.5 acre tract, is known to be interested in seeing the land developed in ways that would benefit young people who want to remain in town. Princeton Community Housing (PCH), which built and operates Princeton Community Village with the help of federal subsidies, is in the process of building Elm Court for the elderly off Elm Road, also with the help of federal funds.

With a long waiting list for its low and moderate income units, PCH would like to build as many of the lower cost units as possible on a tract such as Peterson's and has been holding conversations with Dr. and Mrs. Peterson on the subject. Knowledge of this has swirled around the community in rumor form, bringing citizens to Township Committee to protest.

Last week, Jerry Palin, 85 Bouvant Drive, told Committee that putting all low income housing in one site "negates the features of the (affordable housing) ordinance that people were proud of," namely the mix of moderately-priced middle income units with lower income housing. A critic of the Township's first attempt at an affordable housing ordinance, which was not site-specific, Mr. Palin and his wife Sheila Siderman played a role in the new ordinance which does specifiy sites.

Although there were flaws in the ordinance, Mr. Palin said, he described it as "creative and good, in that it did not create ghettos, but rather stable neighborhood of market as well as low income housing."

Market Units for Funding. But federal subsidies have since dried up, and Mayor Pike theorizes that the PCH may have to include market units as a funding mechanism for the lower income units it seeks to build. In any case, he makes it clear that "talks have not been consummated, no promises made." The mayor has met, either alone or with Deputy Mayor Gail Firestone, with PCH representatives twice.

He acknowledged also having met with Calton Homes representatives in negotiations regarding the White Farm and the pending Mount Laurel litigation, as well as with representatives from Princeton University to discuss the 15 acres promised on a 30-year free lease along West Drive.

Citizens had theorized that lower income housing built on these three sites could wipe out the Township's Mount Laurel obligation, which, although not set, has been suggested to be around 650 units, half for those in the lower income range, half moderate income. But Mayor Pike warned that there was no closure on any of the discussions and problems inherent in all.

Former Planning Board member Elizabeth Hutter asked Township Committee to consider very carefully before it agrees to a density of 12 lower income units to the acre on the Peterson tract. She said the history of other subsidized housing in the town pointed to a need for open space as well as public transportation — both of which cost money.

Also on the Agenda. In other business, Committee adopted the trash can ordinance, requiring homeowners to bring in their trash cans on the day of collection. It also adopted an unusual resolution giving "support and approval" to Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser, who, on advice of the Township Attorney, signed sewer extension permit forms under the terms of the Administrative Consent Order signed with the Department of Environmental Protection, pending a decision by the Department on whether that order or newer, stiffer regulation enacted in July obtain.

Committee also formally appointed Patricia Shuss Acting Township Clerk, pending the completion of the interviewing process for a replacement to Natalie Cruickshank who has resigned. Mrs. Shuss is herself a candidate for the post.

Committee deferred discussion on a proposal to reduce the size of the Planning Board and considered setting up a three-way meeting with members of Council and the Planning Board to discuss the matter. There are currently 14 members in three different classifications on the Princeton Regional Planning Board. The number 14 seems to have been arrived at by simply combining the previous Borough Planning Board with the Township Planning Board, each of which had seven members.

Several members of Township Committee, Mayor Pike included, feel that 14 is too unwieldy a number.

Last Monday was Richard Schoch's final Township Committee meeting. The occasion was memorialized in a resolution and he was presented his name-plate.

The members of the Rescue Squad responded tn 136 calls: 63 In the tnwnship, 33 in the borough, and 40 mutual aid calls, usually requests for the Mohile Intensive Care Unit.

Thirty calls were for persons complaining of chest pain or difficulty breathing, 36 were for lacerations or fractures resulting from falls or minor motor vehicle accidents, five calls were for sizures, two for syncope (fainting), two for dangernus diabetic imbalances, and two persons were treated for reactions to bee stings. The rest included standbys for two Princeton University football games, one general alarm fire and The Princeton half-marathon.

During October, members spent 461 hours on calls and drove the squad's vehicles a total of 1144 miles. Four new members were added to the rolls, hringing the membership number up to 36. So far this year the squad has responded to 1180 calls, 300 of them requiring advanced life support hy the Mobile Intensive Care Unit.

Peacock Inn

Street, Mr. Walker noted that there is very little in the way of facilities for people who want to stay in a small inn in town.

He and partners, who formed Peacock Inn Associates, plan to renovate the inn's 17 rooms over time. However, their immediate aim is to get the restaurant to function satisfactorily.

They do plan, however, to deal in some way with the limited parking at the inn. "We will make necessary arrangements," said Mr. Walker, "which might include valet parking."

The Peacock Inn has been operating continuously at the top of Bayard Lane since 1912, when it was created from a private home built in 1775. The building originally stood at the corner of Nassau Street and University Place and was moved to Bayard Lane in 1878.

Memories of the famous persons who have visited the inn have been woven into the history — and legend — of the town.

F. Scott Fitzgerald frequented the inn's restaurant while a student living on University Place. He entered the University in 1913, just a year after the inn opened.

Mr. Swain noted that several of Fitzgerald's classmates still live in town, and they occasionally stop in and talk about their memories of him. Other recollections of Fitzgerald's visits to the Peacock Inn have appeared in the many biographies written about him, and he is said to have used the name, Peacock Inn, in several of his works.

A PRINCETON INSTITUTION CHANGES HANDS. Two of the new owners of The Peacock Inn are, left, Mark Carrozza, former owner of Cafe Renni in Lambertville, and Michael Walker of Princeton.

Dateline Peacock Inn. Bertrand Russell spent a year, during the early part of the London blitz, living at the inn. The dateline, "Peacock Inn," appears frequently in a volume of Russell's letters edited by McGill University.

Princeton's best known resident, Albert Einstein, also stayed at the inn when he first came to town. He remained there, with his family, until the Institute was able to locate an apartment for him.

Perhaps the most recent well-known guest was Svetlana Alleluyeva, who would often arive alone. She would sometimes appear, however, with members of the Princeton Borough police, in plainclothes. On a few occasions, she was accompanied by foreign dignitaries. Mr. Swain specifically recalls her dining at the inn with the vice president of Yugoslavia.

"She always made me feel she was sad, morose, lonesome and shy, but not bitter," said Mr. Swain. "She was not outgoing, and it's tough for any shy person to make friends."

He recalled that she told The New York Times that the Peacock Inn was her favorite restaurant.

But the restaurant closed in June, just after the death of the Swain's son, who had suffered with diabetes all his life.

Their personal sorrow was a main factor in the Swains' decision to sell, although they had been very close to selling at least three times before in the past few years.

Good Town for an Inn. Mr. Swain speaks with warmth of the wonderful experience of having run the Peacock Inn for nearly two decades. "There's nothing like the inn business in a university town, he says. "The inn business in Waco, Texas, would be very tough."

The Peacock Inn is listed in most of the published books on country inns. Guests are also often referred by Princeton University and through word of mouth.

"I don't think there's a country in the world we haven't had a guest from, said Mr. Swain. "The Japanese, German, English, and Scandinavians, especially, seem to love us."

Mr. Swain is a poet whose works often reflect his feelings about being an innkeeper, a caretaker "of the traditions of this old Princeton institution."

But the inn business is not an easy one. "It's nothing to get a call from Japan at 3 or 4 in the morning for a reservation."

He and his wife have not had more than three weeks off in 18 years. Now they hope to do some traveling and spend time in their house in Scottsdale, Arizona.

As he looks back, just a few weeks before leaving the Peacock Inn, Mr. Swain says, "I'm very grateful for the type of people in Princeton who appreciate old things. Ninety percent of the people in the town are very nice."

—Myrna K. Bearse

Mr. Desai is assisted by his father-in-law, M.M. Das, who recently arrived from India . Mr. Das previously held executive posts with the Bible Society in India and the Evangelical Fellowship of India.

Those interested in further information about the work of International Students Inc., which is what Mr. Desai calls his ministry, are invited to call him at 924-0763 or visit the adult class he teaches at Princeton Alliance Church Sundays at 9:30 a.m. in Princeton High School.

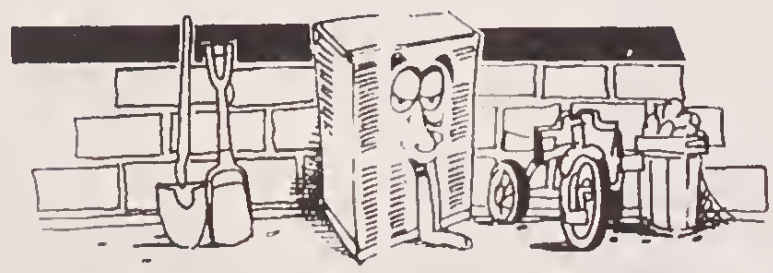
Stop Feeding That Tired Old Energy Hog!



The Trane Executive gas furnace helps you save gas two ways.
This new high efficiency Trane furnace has energy-saving features that older furnaces don't have:

• No standing pilot... the electric spark ignition lights the burners electrically. You pay for gas only when you want heat.
• Automatic vent damper (optional)... closes automatically when burners are off, keeping heat from escaping up the chimney.

FALLING FOR FRILLS

Many people go househunting in a remarkably casual way – and sometimes end up making costly mistakes. One of the mistakes a househunter can make is to buy the frill instead of the house. All too often a family will fall in love with an eye-catching feature and buy the wrong house. This mistake happens frequently and in all price ranges.

Families skip over careful consideration of the major factors because something minor has really grabbed them. The lure may be a charming fireplace, a glamorous lighting fixture, a garage door opener, or even a unique tree or shrub in bloom.

Yielding to superficial attractions like these can result in your family winding up with a thoroughly unsuitable house. Bear in mind that these same alluring features can usually be added to another house at a relatively small cost, considering the amount of the overall purchase.

The Princeton University Press to Lose Miriam Brokaw, Associate Director and Head Editor, to Retirement Dec. 31

Princeton University Press is losing a key director and editor to retirement. R. Miriam Brokaw, associate director and head editor, will retire December 31 after 39 years at the Press.

Miss Brokaw is known throughout the scholarly publishing world as a name to conjure with, an editor who has a nose for the book that lies within a manuscript and a knack for handling authors. Her special interests have been European history and Asian studies, and she is largely responsible for the strong list of books in Asian history and literature for which the Press is known.

R. Miriam Brokaw

These interests are part and parcel of her background and upbringing. Miss Brokaw was born in Japan, the youngest daughter of missionary parents who went to Japan in 1895 and stayed 40 years. Her early schooling was at a Canadian school and from her father's tutoring. At age 13, when her father's health broke down, the family came to the United States, and she went to schools in various places around the country, depending on where she was living.

A full scholarship brought her to Wilson College in Chambersburg, Pa., where the requirements included learning Greek and Hebrew and the study of western civilization. Miss Brokaw's publishing career began at Westminster Press, a religious publishing house in Philadelphia, where she was editor of a number of quarterly magazines for young people. She also wrote what she calls "a few awful short stories" to sell to other religious quarterlies for the grand sum of $20 apiece.

Year in the City. Making her way to New York after eight years at Westminster, she spent a year as a freelance editor for Prentice Hall and Macmillan. However, she loathed the city and longed to be in the country somewhere. She had never heard of university presses when she came to Princeton in 1946 and learned of the Princeton University Press.

The only job available was in the proof room. Datus Smith, director of the press at the time, told her if she would stick it out for two years as a proof reader he would see to it that another place would be found for her. "Stick it out I did," she recalls. "We were in a room with the blinds drawn working with a maximum 15-minute break all day."

At the end of two years, she reminded Mr. Smith of his promise and was promoted to copy editor. The work involved looking over manuscripts for inconsistencies and necessary corrections before they went to the printer. From this post she was promoted to managing editor, responsible for training and supervising the copy editors.

In 1965, Miss Brokaw returned to Japan to spend a year at the University of Tokyo Press, helping the staff choose appropriate books for translation into English, to be published by various American publishers. "It was a lovely trip," she says. "I found where we had lived as a family, and I managed to locate the man who had worked for 25 years for my father and have them all for Christmas dinner."

'Kicked Upstairs.' Despite the pleasure of returning to the country of her childhood and the temptation to remain in what she regards as a highly cultivated atmosphere, she recognized that she was not qualified to continue on at the University of Tokyo Press without more of a reading knowledge of Japanese. With the satisfaction of having created a flow of books, including some medical textbooks, for American publishers, she returned to Princeton.

"The person who had been doing my job (as managing editor) was doing it so well they had no choice but to kick me upstairs." As editor of the Princeton University Press, she has been responsible for the entire editorial department. As associate director, she ranks (with William Becker, the other associate director) directly below the director (currently Herbert Bailey Jr.) and advises him on matters pertaining to all departments.

"This job is great," Miss Brokaw says. "I have had other invitations, but I love it here. I am particularly proud of the quality of our list and the design and printing of our books, for which all credit goes not to our department but to the designers." She says the scholarly publishing world is "world you respect. It isn't highly visible as trade publishing is. There has never been a movie made of our books and one is rarely on the front page of the book review.

"One of the nicest things is meeting and working with authors. You're helping to shape a book, and that's the exciting part." Princeton University Press currently receives about 800 manuscripts a year, of which perhaps 125 are published.

Accomptishments. Miss Brokaw was instrumental in starting the Princeton Library of Asian Translations, of which there are 24 titles now in print. These are important works coming out of the Middle East, China, Japan and India that have been translated and published by the Press. She is proud of this large-scale endeavor, as she is of a slim volume such as Japon and Its World, by Marius Jansen, which covers two centuries in just 128 pages. "And it's not superficial," she notes. "Rather it is a distillation of knowledge, taste and eloquence."

Miss Brokaw was the first staff editor (copyediting) of The Papers of Thomas Jefferson, the first collection of presidential papers in this country, the editing of which has set a precedent for all others. She has also been associated with such projects as the Princeton Encylopedio

A Thank-You Note to Charles Dickens And McCarter for 'A Christmas Carol'

Having seen its fifth annual opening last Saturday night, your reviewer can only repeat with renewed enthusiasm what he said in TOWN TOPICS last December:

"The annual arrival of A Christmas Carol at McCarter Theatre has become like the lighting of a great community Christmas tree. The gifts under it are not precisely the same each year, but they are always plentiful — and, in the full sense of the word, wonderful.

"Thank-you notes, then —

"To Charles Dickens for conceiving this wild, exciting, warm, funny, scary fable, and for writing it in refreshingly good English.

"To Nagle Jackson, McCarter's Artistic Director, for stitching together the highly dramatic Dickens scenes so skillfully and respectfully that one feels the author's exuberant presence even while responding to the actors and the story ...

"To Francis X. Kuhn for his lively direction of this 40-character, Broadway-big show.

"To scene designer Brian Martin for breathtaking evocations of English interiors and exteriors; for whisking us, with revolving stages, from Scrooge's chilly counting house through picturesque London streets to Scrooge's bedeviled bedroom, to scenes from his grim boyhood, to the Cratchits' love-lighted, pudding-scented home, to a game-playing party at Scrooge's nephew's, and finally to the graveyard where Scrooge is horrified to find himself prematurely implanted unless he mends his greedy, unChristmaslike ways.

"To Elizabeth Covey for an amazing array of costumes, to Larry Delinger for mood-enriching music, to Richard Moore for shedding the right light on all of the above ...

"To those parents who brought their children to opening night, allowing the rest of us to enjoy the music of their laughter, lovely and uncanned, weaving itself into the music of Dickens' dialogue ...."

We said it last year, we say it again: "In every respect this latest edition of A Christmas Carol is as fresh as new snow."

University Orchestra Plays First Concert With New Conductor

With both a new conductor and a newly renovated hall in which to play, the Princeton University Orchestra gave its first concert of the season on Friday, December 14, in Richardson Auditorium in Alexander Hall.

This concert featured the debut of Mordechai Scheinkman as conductor and musical director of the orchestra. The program seemed to indicate a decided preference on Scheinkman's part for works of the baroque and classical periods. Three works by members of the Bach family were presented: the Concerto in D Major by C.P.E. Bach; the Double Concerto for Two Violins and Orchestra in D Minor (BWV 1043) by J.S. Bach; and the Sinfonia in B-flat Major by J.C. Bach. Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 in C Major (Op. 21) rounded out the program.

Scheinkman, who replaces Michael Pratt in this position, produced the best music of the evening with the Beethoven symphony. He seemed to feel at ease with this music, more so than with the other works. The piece was well-read, and avoided the labored sound which marred the slow movement of the double concerto. While the third movement of the symphony felt a little pushed and noisy, the rest of the work was carefully developed and well-paced.

Scheinkman apparently prefers a string sound which is heavy in the bass and cellos. This seemed a bit too full a sound for the concerto by the younger Bach and the lean classical lines of the sinfonia. In regard to the concerto, this heaviness may have been partially due to the romantic nature of the transcription by Maximilian Steinberg. This orchestration was very colorful with its use of winds in pairs and occasional pizzicato strings, but was almost too rich for this piece, and thus felt somewhat out of character.

Playing Was Splendid. The orchestra itself played splendidly. In listening to it, one must often remind oneself that these are but young adults, many of whom aspire to be professional classical musicians. Ensemble was nearly perfect and intonation was excellent. Strings and winds were nicely balanced, and the winds blended well as a section.

Soloists in the double concerto by J.S. Bach were Betty Tsuei and James Glockner. These two violinists were well-matched, though Tsuei's tone was occasionally a little thinner than Glockner's. From a musical standpoint they played the concerto very well, and seemed to be of one mind in interpreting the work.

Other individuals of particular note were concert master Stephen McClain for his fine solo work in the C.P.E. Bach concerto, and Melissa Bohl, whose superb phrasing brought great beauty both to that same concerto (on English horn) and the J.C. Bach sinfonia (on oboe).

Scheinkman inherited a good orchestra. It will be interesting to see in what direction he will take it, and how he will further put his personal stamp on its sound.

BACH CONCERT

A New Year's Event. For the fourth consecutive year, McCarter Theatre will usher in the New Year with a special musical presentation of Bach's complete Brandenburg Concerti played in a single evening.

The date is Wednesday, January 2, at 8 p.m., and the performers, as in previous years, will be New York's Y Chamber Symphony, conducted by Gerard Schwarz.

The "Bach Brandenburgs" concert has already become a McCarter New Year's tradition — and an annual sellout — since the first such evening in 1982. This year's edition of the Brandenburg "marathon" will also serve to inaugurate the commencement of the Bach 300th Birthday Year, although the composer's actual 300th birthday does not take place until March 21. Featured soloists with the Y chamber Symphony will include Lionel Party, harpsichord; Syoko Aki, violin; Thomas Nyfenger, flute; Randall Ellis, oboe; and Stephen Burns, trumpet.

Tickets are $10 and $12. To order tickets or for more information call McCarter's box office at 452-5200, noon to 6 p.m. daily.

EXTRA PERFORMANCE

Of Twyla Tharp. In response to popular demand, McCarter Theatre has announced an extra added matinee performance by the Twyla Tharp Dance Company when it returns to McCarter Theatre in January for the first time since 1977.

Although a limited number of tickets still remain for the previously announced subscription performances on Friday and Saturday, January 11 and 12, the best selection is now available for the added matinee on Sunday afternoon, January 13, at 2:30.

The program for the third performance will include works from choreographer Twyla Tharp's early, middle and late periods. The newest work will be "Sorrow Floats," set to music of Georges Bizet and premiered only last season. Another relatively new work will be "Short Stories," which uses songs by rock artists Bruce Springsteen and Supertramp, while the early Tharp classic will be her ever-popular "Baker's Dozen," set to piano rags played by Willie ("The Lion") Smith.

Tickets are priced at $13 and $16 and are available by calling McCarter's box office at 452-5200, noon to 6 daily.

Gifts with Flair from McCarter

Shoppers at a loss for new gift ideas can visit McCarter Theatre's Box Office and Christmas Store where a wide variety of unusual gifts is available for the holiday season. One of the most appropriate gifts for the Christmas season is a set of tickets to McCarter's production of "A Christmas Carol."

In addition to tickets for "A Christmas Carol," holiday shoppers can purchase McCarter's new Christmas Carol poster, illustrated by artist Edward Gorey. Mr. Gorey is known for his distinctive black and white drawings, including his illustrations for T.S. Elliot's book of poems, "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats."

Tickets for "A Christmas Carol" are $12.50 to $16.50, and posters are $3.00.

Holiday celebrations can continue on January 2nd at 8 p.m. with tickets to McCarter's special presentation of Bach's Complete Brandenburgs. This year the performance of Bach's Brandenburgs will be even more special, as it is the 300th anniversary of J.S. Bach's birth.

Any of McCarter's drama, dance and music specials would also make ideal gifts for friends and family. Tickets and information for all McCarter presentations are available by calling the Box Office at (609) 452-5200, noon to six p.m. daily.

McCarter's Christmas Store offers polo shirts, sweat shirts and tee-shirts from $7.00 to $12.00. Christmas cards feature characters from McCarter's "A Christmas Carol" at $2.00 for a set of eight cards. Tote bags and sport bags are $10.00 and $8.00 respectively. Also available are aprons, flashlights, key chains, mugs, playing cards, postcards and coloring books.

McCarter's Christmas Store is open during every performance of "A Christmas Carol" (call Box Office for exact times) and on December 21st from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

And finally, for shoppers who cannot choose among these many gift ideas, gift certificates are available at McCarter's Box Office. Gift certificates can be purchased in any denomination with no surcharge and are good through June 30th. Box Office hours are noon to 6 p.m. daily. Call (609) 452-5200. Area Shops Offer Fine Selection of Treasures For Last Minute Presents and Stocking Stuffers

Not yet finished with holiday shopping? Princeton area shops still have a fine selection of treasures for last minute stocking stuffers and hostess gifts.

LITTLE GIRL'S DREAM ROOM: A bedroom that every little girl would like to call her own fills one of the display windows at Ivy Manor in the Princeton Shopping Center.

IT'S NEW To Us

Let Carvel prepare your Christmas desserts for the holiday season. Festive cakes in the shapes of Santas, reindeer, and snowmen, plus all of the cakes which they prepare throughout the year, decorated in the Christmas motif, will save time for the chef and add a final flare to your Christmas party.

Special decorating can be done upon request. Last year Carvel, located on Route 27, made a sheet cake decorated with a whole nativity scene. Most cakes are molded with chocolate and vanilla ice cream with a delicious chocolate crunch in the middle, but the yule log covered in vanilla or chocolate frosting can be ordered with three flavors.

Carvel is happy to deliver cakes in the area and reminds shoppers with a sweet tooth for good ice cream that gift certificates for any Carvel store across the country are on sale in the shop, as well as through a wire service with an 800 number.

A new line of sports clothing for men is now available at J.D. Sachs, where prices for rugged gear for men and women are more than competitive. Casual cotton canvas shirts and bomber jackets by Royal Robbins are big sellers. Anyone who is shopping for young men, boys and girls who enjoy the outdoors will not have to go much further than this shop, which has an ample supply of outerwear as well as heavy-duty socks, wool and chamois shirts, lined trousers, sweaters for cold weather, back packs, and camping gear. Indoors anyone would enjoy a new flannel nightshirt or long nightgown and a pair of Acorn slipper socks.

Give the runner or skier a new set of long underwear, this time of polypropylene with a zip-turtle neck for comfort, and long enveloping cuffs which double as mitts under mittens for the bitter weather. These come in grey only at $23.50. A navy crew neck set and duofold underwear is available here (in pink with flowers for women). Duofold t-necks for men and women keep their shape much longer than other cotton shirts. This year a few new stripes and colors have been added to the selection.

Gifts from Pendleton are a tradition at Christmas. Think about a handsome wool tartan plaid shirt (there is a new grey and tan tweed this year), blankets, ties, a cheerful red plaid wool robe, a lighter-weight wool shirt and the heavy outdoor shirt jacket for your man this winter. The shirts are on sale for $39.95 at the moment. Wool plaid shirts for the extra tall man are also in stock. Chamois shirts in a wide array of colors are $24.95.

In addition to the Patagonia jackets, J.D. Sachs has ordered a wide selection of outerwear from Sierra Design and Sierra West which are better-priced. Colors of the new bunting-lined jackets vary from reds to blues to purples this year. Pop-tops from Sierra Design,with a kangaroo pocket in red, grey, or navy at $57.95, will be popular gifts for skiers and runners.

Felt-lined lace-up boots, priced at $56, by the Northeast Mountain Trading Co., will stay warm up to 20 degrees below zero. A good assortment of hiking boots — even a pair which is goretex and thinsulate lined — may suggest a good opportunity for a gift.

Warmth seems to be the business of J.D. Sachs, which features a whole line of lined Woolrich jackets. A Balaclava ragg wool hood is lined in polypropylene and will cover most of the head and face.

The good news is that the shop will continue to rent cross country skis this year, charging $6 for the first day and $4 for each subsequent day. When the snow flies, you will know where to go.

Stop in at H. Strauss and Sons, Inc. to see the new portable computers which are being featured as the ultimate gift for the busy professional or student this season. The Data General-One battery-powered portable computer, a complete system all in one, small enough to fit in a briefcase, is a personal computer with a professional capability up to 512K. It features up to twn built-in diskette drive operating systems which are IBM PC compatible. The computer, beginning at $2800, is small enough to use on your lap, in a taxi, in the office, or on an airplane. The typewriter-style keyboard provides all PC functions and is accompanied by a small printer.

Other portable computers by Hewlett Packard, also PC compatible, are ideal for professional use and for students. They plug into an IBM PC and begin at $2500. The company's laserjet printer, a high-speed, photo-electronic, letter-quality printer, has built-in graphic capability. The Kaypro series of portable computers has been very popular with University students, and begins at only $99.

H. Strauss and Sons, Inc. is introducing the Wang word processor, OIS systems, and offers shoppers the complete line of IBM computers Software is discounted here and can be ordered.

The store on Nassau Street also handles a number of excellent electronic typing systems, including those made by Canon, from $259. One machine types with a dot matrix system as a printer does. The Smith Corona graphtext 90 draws with ink pens. The larger portable typewriters have rebate programs up to $40 through December.

This is the year to give someone a telephone. They can be purchased at H. Strauss and Sons, where one finds a large array of cordless and decorator phones, including the wall phone with a cork board and a space for the phone book, and a Kermit one. The AT&T Genesis telephone is on display in the shop.

A full line of Wilkinson Sword tools including the new digging forks and ranging in price from $12.50 to $50, from Obal's will make wonderful gifts for your gardening friends. The ultimate gift for the horticulturalist is an electric chipper-shredder which mulches wood up to 1½ inches thick for $199.95.

Many of us enjoy being cozy inside and watching the winter's beautiful birds come close to the windows to feed. Obal's has an excellent selection of squirrel-proof bird feeders by Droll Yankee, Audubon, and Duncraft, as well as a wide variety of bird seed to attract different types of birds. Those who have bird baths might be interested in a bird bath heater, a device which will surely attract flocks of winged friends.

Put those cheerful poinsettia plants or other flowering Christmas plants in one of Obal's redwood or cypress planters which will be used outside during the summer months. Fresh paperwhites are ready for the holidays at 10 for $4.50 and amarillys is $6.50 a bowl.

Chocolate in all its splendor is the business of Princeton's superior chocolatier, Thomas Sweet. Scrumptious dark, white and milk chocolate in its purest form is poured into molds of all sizes and shapes, creating gifts for everyone you know this Christmas. If you cannot find a sweet gift for a friend or loved one, give them a gift certificate from the shop, so that they can choose their own.

In addition to several varieties of Santas, Christmas trees, sleighs, candy canes, and reindeer molded for the holiday season, boxed and gift wrapped, Thomas Sweet has some new creations which suit the diverse interests of the Princeton population. A chocolate Mercedes 450 at $10, and a 500 model at $11, are Runners, skiers, tennis and squash players all frequent the exercise classes which take place several times during the morning, at noon, and in the afternoons.

A gentle class for beginners and those who have health restrictions is also given each day. Babysitting is available during all classes.

The stocking stuffer section at Gail's Gifts will fill each one with one-of-a-kind treasures.

"The crown jewel of pipes" according to Tom Pipecarver — the Meerschaum pipes from Turkey — are being featured in the shop this month. A carved Sherlock Holmes, an American Indian, a cavalier, a devil, a seafarer, and a rose are among the selections. Still other famous brands such as Stanwell, Barling, Savinelli, Bari, Comoys, and Peterson's pipes are available for your favorite smoker.

A cigar smoker himself, Tom Pipecarver has found a collection of first-rate quality cigars at great savings for his customers with the most discriminating taste. Boxes of famous maker cigars are discounted by 10 percent. A good cigar is a must in many families after a wonderful Christmas dinner, so consider giving a box of Macanudos, Ramon Aliones, or Partagas.

A good stock of famous imported tobacco in packages is found in the small shop on Spring Street. Tom Pipecarver has been refining and selecting the finest tobaccos available to make his custom blends which he sends to customers all over the country. "We have tobacco for any taste," he promises.

Accessories and gifts for smokers here include leather tobacco pouches, brass humidors beginning at $17.50, and several choices of lighters including electronic pipe lighters.

As we all know good health is the greatest gift of all.

Help that special person to begin a new program of total health fitness at Princeton Nautilus, where he or she will receive a complete health and fitness evaluation, a program of exercise custom-designed to his or her needs, access to a superior club with exerdance classes, massage, tanning, whirlpool, and sauna facilities. Here is a place to exercise and relax in a positive environment surrounded by professionals dedicated to the philosophy that total fitness makes happier people.

Gift certificates to Princeton Nautilus are super gifts for Christmas. A $50 discount off a yearly membership is currently being offered by the club, where shorter memberships are also available. Start a friend off with a gift certificate for a wonderful massage by the Princeton Massage Group located downstairs at Nautilus. One half-hour session is $18, and an hour is $29.

Try the new tanning salon: six 25-minute sessions for $29. Exerdance has become an institution in Princeton in one short year. It is not only great exercise but fun for men and women who can vary their schedules because so many classes are offered daily. Give an Exerdance gift certificate for an eight-week session; once a week is $26, two times is $48, a discount of 20 percent is offered for three times a week: $60, and four times is $80. These are gifts which can be enjoyed all year long.

Long-sleeved cotton tee shirts for $12, and gym bags for $10 are gifts which will encourage a friend to work his way back to fitness.

Home video entertainment has become a national pastime. Treat your friends and family to gift certificates from Palmer Video in the Princeton Shopping Center, where yearly memberships for $45 and three-year ones, at $90, are currently reduced for the holidays by 10 percent. Blank cassettes and prerecorded tapes for children and adults are available for purchase, as well as rental, from the shop owned by Candi Brina.

Treat a small friend (and his or her parents) to hours of enjoyment with tapes ranging in price from $29.95 to $49.95. Choose from a selection of educational classics, as well as the diverting Disney cartoons. "Mickey's Christmas Carol," "Winnie the Pooh and Friends," "A Boy Named Charlie Brown," "Beany and Cecil," and an animated version of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" are excellent choices.

Do you know someone who would like to get back into shape or keep up a good physique? Give "Jane Fonda's Workout," her new "Prime Time Workout," or a workout especially for pregnant mothers. "Purple Rain" and "The Empire Strikes Back" will appeal to the younger set.

Video rentals continue to enjoy incredible popularity.

The choices include the latest releases, nostalgia, musicals, mysteries, sports events, foreign, western, classic, and science fiction films.

Other gift ideas from Palmer Video include blank cassettes, a $25 wooden rack which accommodates 15 cassettes, or a service which transfers old movies onto video cassettes. What a super gift for grandparents!

CHILDREN FEATURED

In Squibb Exhibition. For the holidays, The Squibb Gallery offers a collection of portraits and genre paintings — those depicting scenes from everyday life — that feature children. The exhibition is called "The Happy Season," and will be on view through January 9.

Art mirrors life, and this diversified selection of paintings and drawings recalls childhood memories sure to appeal to both emotion and intellect.

The realism and the poetry of young, happy days are expressed in an abundance of styles and subjects — a parade, listening to a seashell, sledding. The portraits, some formally aloof, say much about the times in which they were painted, and about our own as well.

The exhibition includes American and European works created in the 19th and early 20th centuries by artists such as Pierre Auguste Renoir, Emmanuel Leutze, C.K. Chatterton, Jerome Myers, Samuel S. Carr and others. The works have been drawn from private collections in Princeton, leading galleries in New York City and the Paterson Free Public Library.

The Squibb Gallery is located in Squibb Corporation on Route 206 three miles south of Princeton. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 Monday through Friday, with extended hours until 9 p.m. on Thursday. The Gallery is open on weekends from 1 p.m. to 5.

EXHIBITS

Architectural themes in two-dimensional art are the subject of an exhibition at the Library Gallery on Mercer County Community College's West Windsor campus. The exhibition begins Friday and continues through January 7.

Featured in "Art in Architecture: Architecture in Art," are Princeton area artists Pat Tindall, Mary Yess and Jeff Epstein. The public is invited to an opening-day reception from 5 to 7 p.m.

Ms. Tindall has worked as a fine and commercial artist since 1946. She is also an administrator in the art and archaeology department of Princeton University. She attended Pratt Institute and earned an A.A. degree from Mercer County Community College and a B.A. from Edison College. Known for her representational watercolors, she has had five solo exhibitions.

Ms. Yess directs the Princeton Art Association and is past president of the Trenton Artists Workshop Association (TAWA). She holds a B.A. in art history from Millersville State College and an MFA in painting from Pratt Institute.

In this exhibition her work represents the latest in a series begun in 1972. The pieces range from small studies done in oil pastel, pencil and Xerox collage on paper, to large oil and oil pastel paintings on linen. The works were done, in part, through a fellowship from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

Mr. Epstein earned his B.A. from Moravian College in Bethlehem, Pa. He received a state arts council fellowship in 1984 and has had nine solo exhibitions since 1976. Although he works primarily in oil, the Lawrenceville artist also executes many small studies and works in oil pastel on paper. The show will include 13 of his works.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday; until 5 p.m. on Friday; and from 9 to 5 on Saturday. The MCCC library and gallery will be closed from December 21 through January 1. For additional information, call MCCC Curator Randal Salewski at 586-4800, extension 588.

"Books for Kings: Illuminated Manuscripts from the Orient," will be on view in the Exhibition Gallery of Firestone Library at Princeton University through January 6.

is the recent acquisition of the illustrated 16th-century manuscript of the Persian national epic, Firdowsi "Shahnameh," or "Book of Kings," a bequest of Clara S. Peck.

Richly illuminated manuscripts and miniatures from Persia, India, and Japan are displayed in the showcases against backgrounds of orange and persimmon. All are from the University's holdings, which include the largest collection of Islamic manuscripts in the Western Hemisphere. Many are gifts of Robert Garrett '97, an Orientalist who also helped organize the modern Olympics.

Moslem proscription against embellishing the holy scripture with illustrations resulted in the luxuriant illumination of the "carpet" pages that began and ended copies of the Koran. Carpet illuminations, with their elaborate geometrical designs and brilliant colors, appear in a group of Korans that span several centuries. fn two folios from a 17th-century Koran, gilt medallions the size of shoe boxes are used to separate verses.

The oldest Koran on view is from the ninth century and is written in Kufic script; medallions in gold and colors mark the textual divisions. In another Koran, the Persian translation of the sacred Arabic text is written in red between the black lines of the text.

Curator for the exhibition is Alfred Bush of the library's rare book department. The show is open to the public from 9 to 5 Monday through Saturday, and from 2 to 5 on Sunday.

of Poetry and Poetics, George Kennan's volumes on U.S.-Soviet relations, and the Press's series on the Modernization of Japan and the Princeton Essays on Literature.

Miss Brokaw has served as president of the Association of American University Presses, the only woman ever elected to that post and the only person who was not a director of a press. She has alsn served as Secretary General of the International Association of Scholarly Publishers.

"...It isn't highly visible as trade publishing is. There has never been a movie made of our books and one is rarely on the front page of the book review."

Respected. She is known to her colleagues as one who is trustworthy and honest, possessed of the gift of candor but able to tell the truth in a way that does not hurt. This applies to her staff as well as to authors.

Herbert Bailey, noting that Miss Brokaw has spent virtually all her working life in publishing says, "There is no one more loyal to Princeton University Press and the purposes of the press in publishing schnlarly hooks. She clearly works well with authors. They respect her judgement and the fact that she doesn't try to rewrite them.

"She has a marvelnus sense of a book and how it will be read by the reader and how to make it as good as it can he." Miss Brokaw was feted by the trustees and department heads at the annual dinner meeting of the trustees last week and again at the Press's annual Christmas party.

A self-effacing, quiet-spoken woman of 67, Miss Brokaw plans to remain in Princeton, living as she does on Province Line Road, but she would like to keep in touch with this world of books and authors that has been so much of her life. She has been asked by the University of California Press to find some bright new authors, primarily in Asian studies, to build up that list.

And she would dearly love, if it were feasible, to start a bookstore in Princeton that would stock the books of all the university presses. The first such press bookstore has opened in Berkeley, Calif., and the New School of Social Research in New York City is in the process of opening one also.

Returning again to her thoughts on the life she is about to give up, she says, "Another nice thing about this world is the nice people in it. Serious people who wear their seriousness lightly."

Miriam Brokaw, editor, will be missed in that world as much as she herself will miss being part of it on a day-to-day basis.

BOOKS ON ICELAND

Landau's has given Princeton Public Library 13 books published by Iceland Review, Iceland's largest publishing house.

This joint gift to the people of Princeton is made in celebration of the first commercial distribution of Iceland Review titles outside of Iceland. Landau's is the only distributor of these books in the U.S.

The 13 books represent a cross section of the books published by Iceland Review which range from translations of the sagas, to the works of 20th century poets and novelists (including Nobel laureate Halldor Laxness), to colorful pictorials of Icelandic life.

"Over the years that we've sold Icelandic goods," says Robert Landau of Landau's, "we've found that most people know very little about Iceland. To many, it's this mysterious place. We hope that these books will give people a better understanding of Iceland, which is a pretty unique place."

The books are available at the Public Library.

Penn's Chambers Beats Out Graham As Ivy Football Player of the Year

Penn's all-purpose defensive back Tim Chambers beat out Princeton's wide receiver Derek Graham by seven points in balloting by the league's head coaches for the Ivy Football Player of the Year award.

A 5-10, 185-pound senior, Chambers is the first Penn player to win the Asa S. Bushnell Cup since the award was instituted in 1970. He was the leading player in the Quaker backfield, making numerous tackles and intercepting four passes. He was second in the league in punt returns and fourth in kickoff returns.

Chambers, who finished third in last year's vote behind Cornell's Derek Harmon and Columbia's John Witkowski, the 1982 winner, collected five first place votes and one second for 28 points. Graham was second with 21 points, two firsts, three seconds and two thirds.

Yale's John Zanieski finished third with 14; Cornell's Tony Baker, fourth with seven; and Columbia's Dan Upperco, fifth with 2. Dartmouth's Slade Schuster, was also nominated, but did not receive a vote.

Previous winners were, Jim Chasey, Dartmouth, and Ed Marinaro, Cornell, 1970; Marinaro, 1971; Dick Jauron, Yale, 1972; Jim Stoeckel, Harvard, 1973; Walt Snickenberger, Princeton, 1974; Doug Jackson, Columbia, 1975; John Pagliaro, Yale, 1976 and 1977; Buddy Teevens, Dartmouth, 1978; Tim Tumpane, Dartmouth, 1979; Kevin Czinger, Yale, 1980; and Rich Diana, Yale, 1981.

PRINCETON WINS TWICE

Over USI in Hockey. It should be a relaxed and pleasant Christmas for coach Jim Higgins and the Princeton men's hockey team.

The Tigers won a pair of games from U.S. International last weekend to lift their season's mark to 6-4, the best it has been at this point in many years. The team is free of any major injuries, and now will enjoy a two and a half week break until its next game.

There is no trip to a tournament or to the midwest this winter, so the Orange and Black will not play again until it meets Notre Dame in Baker Rink, Wednesday, January 2.

The 6-4 mark will give Princeton a decent shot at a .500-plus season, but it will have to work much harder at gaining one of the eight spots in the ECAC playoffs. The team is 3-4 in Division I play; the victories over USI and Holy Cross do not count.

USI No Match for Tigers. Last weekend against USI, Princeton learned the value of a good shot. It took 48 the first night against the visitors' goalie Doug Spedding, but scored only three times en route to a 3-1 triumph.

The following evening USI's Bob Watson was in the nets when the Tigers took 33. However, eight of these found the mark in an 8-2 rout.

The visitors scored first Friday night, getting their only goal of the contest against Dave Shea, 8:20 into the first period. Cliff Abrecht gave the puck away deep in his own end, and the Gulls made the most of the opportunity for a 1-0 lead.

A little more than seven minutes later John Rocco tied the score, assisted by Scott Howe and Allan Gray. In the second period, Pat Brodeur put the Orange and Black ahead to stay, when he took Steve Biss' pass from behind the net and fired the puck past Spedding all in one motion.

In the final period, Tim Oshier finally made good on one of the teams' six power play opportunities, when he steered a slap shot by Abrecht into the net. Shea was not pressured in the net, making just 16 saves, only two in the third period

---

More Scoring Saturday. Princeton had much more success in its shooting against Watson the following night, although it again found itself behind in the first period.

USI scored the opening goal two minutes into the contest. Tim Cole quickly tied it up just 33 seconds later on a power play, and Oshier made it 2-1 at 15:44, deflecting Len Quesnelle's drive from the point. However, the visitors got a power play goal of their

When was the last time a major-college football team went through an entire regular season and didn't allow ANY team to score ANY points against them in ANY game? ... Last to do that was Tennessee in 1939 ... Here's their complete regular-season record that year ... They opened against North Carolina State and won 13-0 ... Then they beat Sewanee 40-0, Chattanooga 28-0, Alabama 21-0, Mercer 17-0, LSU 20-0, Citadel 34-0, Vanderbilt 13-0, Kentucky 19-0 and Auburn 7-0.

I bet you didn't know ... that a $1,000,000 liability insurance policy would cover you if an intoxicated guest is involved in an auto accident after leaving your holiday party.

One of the most spectacular runs of the 1984 football season was made by Ohio State tailback Keith Byars against Illinois on Oct. 13 .. At the beginning of the run, Byars' left shoe came off ... But he kept running — and despite having one shoe on, and one shoe off — he still outran all defenders and went 67 yards for a touchdown.

Here's an oddity from football ... The 2 coaches who won the most games in history — Paul Bryant of Alabama in college football and George Halas of the Chicago Bears in pro football — BOTH had nicknames of Bear ... Paul Bryant, of course, was Bear Bryant, and George Halas was known throughout most of his career as Papa Bear.

own to deadlock the score again before the first period ended.

The Tigers were slow in getting started in the second period, and needed a five-minute penalty for spearing against the Gulls' Pat Mayer to help them score their third goal. Mayer subsequently received a game disqualification for a temper tantrum.

That tally by freshman Dave Downing opened the gates and Brodeur, Rocco and Gray all scored before the period ended to make it 6-2. Scott Howe added another in the third, and Oshier got his second with just 57 seconds remaining on a break away with the Orange and Black shorthanded

---

Dave Marotta was in the nets for the Tigers this time, and had somewhat more work than Shea, stopping 22 shots. The game was marked by a great deal of "chippy" play, especially in the third period. Penalties for roughing, high-sticking and elbowing were commonplace, with Princeton drawing 11 on the night and USI, nine.

The attendance for both nights totalled less than 1,000, but should improve when better known teams are playing. USI was a game competitor, hut at 2-15-1 already this season, it has a long way to go.

TIGERS SPLIT A PAIR

Beat NYU, Lose to Vanderbilt

Seven games into the season, three observations about the Princeton hasketball team can be made.

1 After a shaky start, it has gained the confidence to he able to defeat Division III teams with relative ease --witness the 51-34 triumph over New York University last Wednesday.

---

2. After five games, the Tigers still have not beaten a Division I or II squad, and the margin of defeat is growing --witness the 68-47 loss to Vanderbilt last Saturday night.

3. Since there are no Division III opponents left on the schedule, the Orange and Black is going to have to learn how to heat a few Division I and II foes, or Pete Carril is in for his first losing season ever here.

Carril has had worse starts before, and managed to pull himself at least to the .500 mark before the season ended. In the 1979-80 campaign, his squad got off to a horrendous beginning, losing its first five contests.

It then won twice, but lost its next six for a 2-11 mark, heading into league play. Over the course of the next six weeks, however, Princeton went 13-4, including victories over St. Joseph's and Rutgers to finish 15-15.

So, it's not time to push the panic button, yet. At 2-5, the Tigers still have plenty of time to turn things around. They had a game scheduled to be played this past Tuesday night (too late to be included here) against 5-1 Bowling Green in Ohio.

Next, after a short Christmas break, they'll go back to the Buckeye State for the Blade Classic in Toledo, Friday and Saturday, December 28 and 29. Princeton will be matched against the

New Models on Display at Princeton Volkswagen

Three new cars and a host of improvements in four other models in the 1985 Volkswagen lineup are now on display at Princeton Volkswagen, Route 206

A new, longer-term warranty and a new anti-corrosion perforation warranty, plus reductions in the prices of some models, are also featured for 1985.

The Jetta notchback, the Golf hatchback, and the high-performance GTI, "are completely new from bumper to bumper," reports sales manager Larry Johnson.

Suggested retail list prices for the 1985 VWs start at $6,790 for the Golf diesel two-door – 1.8 percent less than a comparably equipped 1984 Rabbit which, Mr. Johnson points out, was smaller than the new vehicle, carrying four persons while the new Golf carries five. In addition, fuel capacity has been increased forty percent and interior noise has been reduced. The new Jetta and Jetta GL share these improvements plus a 25 percent larger trunk.

The powerful GTI, with its 100-horsepower engine has a rated top speed of 116 mph, with zero-to-60 mph acceleration times of 9.5 seconds. According to Mr. Johnson, new aerodynamic aids and chassis additions set the GTI apart in looks and performance. The GTI will be available in January.

The limited warranty on all 1985 Volkswagens has been extended to two years with no mileage limitation, it had been 12 months with unlimited mileage. In addition, all 1985 VWs are covered by a limited three-year anti-corrosion perforation warranty, also with no mileage limit host team in the opening round, and play either the University of North Carolina or Idaho the following night.

What's Wrong Here. Along the way, Carril will do his best to try and find the right combination of players to score, rebound and play effective defense.

John Smyth is showing signs of scoring more consistently, but he needs help. Howie Levy seems lost at center without those pinpoint passes from Billy Ryan that gave him so many easy baskets last winter.

Joe Scott is gaining confidence trying to fill Ryan's shoes as the team's quarterback, but still has much to learn. Both forward slots are still there for the taking, and may be for the rest of the season. Aaron Belz, Alan Williams, John Thompson, Jay Bubniak, Ted Gobillot, none of these is a proven starter yet.

Never were the team's problems more apparent than against a good Vanderbilt team in Nashville Saturday night. The Tigers hit a sour note in Music City.

The outcome of the game was decided in the first five and a half minutes. During that span, the undefeated (5-0) Commodores hit six baskets for a 12-0 lead. All the Orange and Black had to show for its efforts were two missed shots, five fouls and three turnovers. Alan Williams finally got the team's first point, hitting one of two from the free throw line with 14:21 remaining.

The first field goal didn't come until another minute later from Smyth. That made it 14-3, and it got worse, 32-16, by halftime.

Levy, who collected four fouls in the first 20 minutes in an attempt to stop the home team's inside game, departed with his fifth soon after the second half got under way. Princeton's brief try at a rally closed the gap to 42-29, before Vandy pulled away.

Smyth finished with 15; Bubniak came off the bench to hit four baskets for eight points, but that was the extent of the Tiger scoring. The team shot 22 of 43, a little better than 50 percent, but rarely got to the foul line, and canned only three of five. Vandy was 14 of 18 from the charity stripe.

Violets Shrink. If New York University ever gets a basketball team that matches the four-color, golden anniversary media guide it publishes for the sport, watch out.

Once a powerhouse on the hardcourt, the University dropped basketball in 1972, and now is in its second year of a rejuvenated program on the Division III level. The media guide is light years ahead of the program.

Once upon a time guys like Barry Kramer, Tom Sanders, Cal Ramsey, Harold Hairston and Dolph Schayes played for the Violets, but the skill level has shrunk tremendously in 30 years. The team that showed up last Wednesday night in Jadwin before an announced crowd of 948 could manage just eight points in the first 20 minutes of play. That's low even by Princeton standards.

On defense, NYU was content to collapse around Howard Levy, and let the Tigers shoot from the outside. It worked for a while, as the Orange and Black struggled in the early going, even falling behind 4-2. Later on however, freshman John Thompson came off the bench and breathed some life into the offense. John Smyth soon began to hit consistently from medium range, and Princeton pulled away from an 11-8 advantage.

With Smyth hitting five of his team's last six field goals, the Tigers enjoyed a 25-8 halftime lead, and their first and probably last ho-hum contest of the season. The visitors canned their seventh and eighth points with 7:24 left in the half, and didn't get any more.

In an attempt to stem the Princeton tide, they held for the last shot with a minute remaining, but were called for an offensive foul. They shot a scintillating 21 percent in the first 20 minutes, hitting just four of 19 shots.

With Carril substituting early and often, the second half came out exactly even, each team scoring 26 points. The Tigers led by 26 at one point, but the visitors had pared that to 17 by the final buzzer for a 51-34 finish.

Smyth had the kind of night he needs to have against more formidable opponents, sinking nine of 13 attempts and two free throws for 20 points, in just 29 minutes of playing time. Aaron Belz and Thompson tallied eight apiece.

HUN QUINTET VICTOR

Over MKSD, 56-41. What the Hun School basketball team committed in turnovers it made up for in intensity Monday in a 56-41 victory over the Marie Katzenbach School for the Deaf.

Hun turned the ball over 22 times to the dismay of coach Pat Kahny but Kahny added that he was happy with the intensity of the play of his Raiders. The win left Hun with a 2-3 record.

Hitting on half its shots, Hun took a 33-26 lead into the locker room at the half and maintained that margin through the third period. In the final period, Hun decided to sit on the ball, because, said Kahny, he wanted his team to have practice in holding the ball. Hun, he discovered, still needs work in that phase.

MKSD rallied to cut Hun's margin to four, 43-39, before Hun fought back, hitting for 11 unanswered points.

Three Hun players were in double figures to account for 40 of Hun's points. Keith Green had 19, Tom Jingoli 11 and Chris Mackin, 10. The loss was MKSD's third against one win.

Hun Grapplers Lose. Hun was not as successful on the mat as on the court Monday when Dave Faus's wrestling team dropped a close, 33-30, decision to Lawrence.

Hun picked up all of its points on three pins and two forfeits. Nick Wofsy got a pin in 3:20 for Hun in the 119-pound class and teammate Mike Sophocles followed with a 3:59 pin over the Cardinals' Scott Bard. Steve Wolf then increased his record to 5-1 with a pin in 3:01 over Steve Warner at 138 pounds and a 24-15 lead.

The visitors swept the next four matches, getting two pins and two decisions and it was enough to offset a Lawrence forfeit in the final heavyweight bout.

PDS SEXTET NOW 2-1

After Two Home Victories. The Princeton Day boys hockey team rebounded from an opening season loss to Peddie with a pair of lopsided triumphs last week.

Now sporting a 2-1 mark, the Panthers have one more game left before the Christmas break, meeting Pingry at home this Wednesday.

Chris McCabe was the big gun for the Blue and White, notching a hat trick and assisting on another goal, as the contest was close only through the first period. PDS held a slim 2-1 advantage at that point, but exploded for five unanswered tallies in the second. Each team scored once in the final frame.

Others who scored for the Panthers included John Cook, Sam Lambert, Matt Lustig, Jim Knill, and John Bylin. Knill and Bylin also picked up assists, and Eric Bylin and Bill Roach had two assists apiece.

MCCABE IN CONTROL: Princeton Day's Chris McCabe had the puck on his stick a good deal of the time against Upland Country Day last Friday in the PDS rink. The junior forward, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted McCabe, 315 Herrontown Road, tallied three times and had one assist in his team's 8-2 victory. (W.L. Bill Allen photo)

PDS outshot the visitors, 28-16. Brad Smith started in goal for Princeton Day, and was replaced by Jon DeRochi.

Notre Dame Beaten. McCabe and Cary Paik each scored twice to lead Princeton Day to a 7-2 victory over Notre Dame last Wednesday.

PDS could manage just one goal in the first period, but came alive to pump in three in both the second and the third.

Others who scored for the Panthers included Knill, Eric Bylin and Roach. Cook, Peter Sienkiewicz and Tom Foster had two assists apiece.

PHS IS 40-26 VICTIM

In Basketball Opener. The Princeton High girls basketball team got off on the wrong foot Monday when it lost its opening game of the season to visiting Lawrence, 40-26.

Both teams had trouble finding the basket in the first half. With the score tied at 10, Lawrence made the next five points to take a 15-10 lead at intermission.

In the second half, Lawrence, playing its third game of the season, controlled the boards and its shots started to drop. The decisive factor, in PHS coach Joyce Jones' view, was Princeton missing so many uncontested layups. "If we had made even 50 percent, it would have made a big difference," said Jones.

Tomi Morton paced PHS with seven points, while Cassie Vogt had six and Tracey Hemingway, five. The Cardinals were led by Cathy Cirullo and Christine Turner who combined for 24 points. Donna Fracella was a defensive thorn for the Little Tigers with seven steals.

PHS VS. NOTRE DAME

On Mat This Wednesday, Princeton High School's wrestling team, which already has equaled last year's victories with an opening 35-26 win over Ewing last week, will try to make it two in a row this Wednesday evening. The Little Tigers will host Notre Dame in a match starting at 8.

The Irish struggled through a 4-12 season last year and has five starters returning. PHS coach Lee Merrill reports he has no advance knowledge on the Irish but adds Notre Dame "is always tough and they have a good coach (Gary Dambro)."

Like PHS, Notre Dame does not have a very big squad.

Despite having to forfeit three matches (98, 105 and 145) Princeton surprised Ewing with a come-from-behind victory. The Little Tigers were trailing 26-17 with four bouts remaining and it appeared as if the Blue Devils, 13-4 last year, had a hammerlock on the outcome. Instead it was PHS that finished strong with two decisions and two finishing pins.

Guillermo Orlanski, wrestling his third year for PHS, started the comeback with a 7-4 decision over Joe Charyk. Dominic Tracey followed with a 6-4 decision over Ewing co-captain Joe Gummel at 165 pounds.

Princeton's crack 185-pounder Brett Van deBovenkamp then gave PHS the lead for the first time in the match with a 2:22 fall over Joe Ottobre, and Paul Johnson sealed the outcome with a 4:40 pin of Ewing heavyweight Anthony Messina.

"They're all trying hard. I was pleased," commented Merrill.

Princeton's other points came at 112 pounds, where Dennis Bustos, the transfer from Hun School flattened Larry Robinson in 50 seconds in his first match as a Little Tiger, and at 119 pounds where sophomore Jeff Robinson decisioned Tim Ellis, 10-5.

In the 132-pound match, Princeton's Josh Bagley and Ewing's Bruce Rivers battled to a 5-5 draw.

Merrill reported he has two wrestlers who might work out and fill in the vacant spots at 98 and 105 pounds but they will need at least a half-dozen practice sessions before they can take to the mat. He also added that veteran heavyweight Tamer El-Shakhs is still working out, still trying to overcome a shoulder injury that has sidelined him.

Following Wednesday's meet with Notre Dame, PHS will be idle until a January 3 match against Hopewell Valley. The annual Christmas tournament is now called the Mercer County Tournament and is held in February at Steinert High.

PDS GIRLS WIN THIRD In Basketball. The Princeton Day girls, basketball team has gotten off to a successful start, winning its first three games.

Last week the Panthers won the Stuart Tournament, and this past Friday, they beat Peddie, a second time. The score was a little closer this time, but not much, PDS winning, 53-31.

The visitors managed to make a contest out of it for two quarters, and trailed just 20-16 at the half. But PDS outscored the Falcons by 15-6 in the third period, and 18-9 in the final quarter to win going away.

Cathy Barone led all scorers with 22 points, and Karen Callaway added 19. Becky Stoltzfus scored six points, grabbed seven rebounds and intercepted five Peddie passes. Peddie's record fell to 2-2.

Boys Lose Twice. The PDS boys' quintet was not as successful, losing both its contests last week. Rutgers Prep knocked off the Panthers, 83-72, last Wednesday, and West Windsor took away a 60-46 decision on Friday.

Playing their season's opener on the road, the Pirates raced to a 17-5 first period lead and never looked back. They increased that to 27-13 at the half, and by the third period the visitors were almost out of sight, 47-24. PDS made the final score more respectable in the final quarter against the WW reserves.

STOLTZFUS UP FOR TWO: Princeton Day's Becky Stoltzfus took this shot over the outstretched arms of a Peddie defender in Friday's game at PDS. The Panthers had little trouble defeating the Falcons for the second time in a week, 53-31. (W L. Bill Allen photo)

Bill Royal was the big gun for the winners, scoring 22 points and pulling down 15 rebounds. Jon McConaughy had 17 for PDS, Lynch Hunt contributed 15.

Jacques Gets 22 in Loss. Last Wednesday, senior Charlie Jacques scored a career-high 22 points against Rutgers Prep, but they came in a losing effort. PDS trailed 19-14 after the first quarter, and never made up the difference.

The winners built up a

15-point advantage at the half, 44-29, and increased that to 61-43 at the end of the third quarter. Rob Chibbaro added 16 points, and Hunt had 14.

PHS EVENS RECORD

With Win Over Lawrence. The Princeton High School basketball team followed an opening 69-63 overtime loss to Peddie last week with a 63-53 victory over Lawrence Monday to even its record.

"It's been a long time since I've been 1-1 this early in the season," said a relaxed Marv Trotman, the PHS coach. The Little Tigers will be idle until Dec. 27 when they play Pennsbury High in the first round of the Ewing High School Holiday Tournament.

Forget that 10-point difference over Lawrence. PHS had this game all the way and built up a 57-37 bulge early in the final period before Trotman turned it over to scrubs. All 13 members on the team got to play. The final two points — two free throws — were made by tiny Darius Young, who may not even reach five feet.

"It was the first time in six or seven years," insisted Trotman, "that I had an opportunity to play everybody."

To be honest, it was not pristine basketball. "The kids have a tendency to play to the level of the other team," said Trotman. "I saw some stuff out there tonight that amazed me. We were not the same team that played Peddie.

"We missed a lot, a lot of shots. (Both teams shot 37 percent). But I was very happy with our play under the boards. We got a lot of offensive rebounds but we couldn't put the ball back in. And we couldn't make any foul shots.

"We played decently in spots," summed up Trotman. "We'll work on some things. The tougher the competition, the better we play."

A layup by Steve Davis gave PHS a 11-9 lead at the end of the first period and an 11-point run in the second period staked the Little Tigers to a 30-20 halftime lead. Feddie Young and Marvin Trotman combined for 15 points in the half.

The shooting of Trotman and Scott Fisher paced PHS to a 22-17 point third-period advantage as the Cardinals were never able to stop Princeton's dominant play under the boards to close the gap.

"We're definitely a good rebounding team," agreed Trotman. "Freddie crashes the boards as hard as anybody."

Trotman also singled out the play of Fisher, saying, "He did a real nice job for us. He kept us together. He won't score many points but he'll keep people in the right places, throw the good pass. The kids who are supposed to score for us scored some points."

Although Trotman tried to keep the win in perspective by saying it was only a game, he was obviously pleased.

Trotman, Young and Fisher were the top scorers for PHS with 16, 15 and 10 points respectively. Davis and Frantz Massenat combined for nine more.

There were two moments, one off the court and one on. The game was stopped early in the third period for five minutes while referees Larry McHugh and Phil Smith tried to sort out a problem with the scoreboard. "The home book had one score, the visitors' book another and the scoreboard another score," explained McHugh. The upshot was Lawrence had two points taken off its scoreboard score.

The other moment came in the final period when Young stole the ball under the Lawrence basket, drove the length of the floor and soared the final ten feet through the air for a thunderous dunk. Only Freddie missed. Stunned, he remained under the basket while Trotman was waving him up the floor to get back into the flow of play.

Lose in Overtime. Friday, in its opener with Peddie in Hightstown, the level of competition was higher. Peddie was playing its sixth game of the season, Princeton its first. Peddie had three post graduates on its team — or college freshmen as Trotman refers to them.

Still PHS came within an eyelash of defeating the Falcons. "I was very happy with the way everybody played," said Trotman.

Young's jumper with 19 seconds in regular time tied the game at 59. In the overtime, PHS had two starters on the bench (Young and Darryl Hemingway) and Peddie outscored PHS 10-4 for its 69-63 win. "We were outmanned," said Trotman.

Trotman led Princeton with 18 points, Hemingway had 15 and Young 13. Fisher added nine.

Marc Greenberg, a 6-5, 200-pound PG from Abington High (Pa.) was instrumental in forging the Peddie victory. He shot 11 for 21 from the floor in leading the Falcons with 23 points and hauled down 12 rebounds. Another PG, Cliff Kareem, canned 17 points and had nine steals.

HUN MATMEN TRIPPED

By George School, 38-30. The Hun School wrestling team put up a spirited fight last week before falling to favored George School, 38-30, but Hun coach Dave Faus felt his team should have done even better.

"We had to forfeit at 119 because we didn't make weight. It was probably the margin of difference in the match," said Faus.

Hun will compete in a four-team match at Academy of New Church in Bryn Athyn, Pa. this Wednesday and then break for the holiday, resuming January 7 against Ewing.

Against George School, Seth Wheaton and Steve Wolf put recorded pins for Hun to raise their records to 4-1. Wolf pinned his 136-pound opponent in 36 seconds while Wheaton had a 3:01 fall at 185 pounds. Hun heavyweight Nick Kydoneus finished off the match with a 45-second pin over Aaron Sexton.

Hun's 145-pounder Geoff Hogate, who Faus says is having a good season so far, pinned George's Rod Waters in 47 seconds. Hun's other win at 112 pounds also came on a fall by Danny Zumbrun over Ken Aden in 1:51.

Hun also had to forfeit the 105-pound match and sustained pins at 98, 157 and 167 pounds. Hun veteran Nick Wofsy lost a 9-0 decision at 126 pounds and freshman Martin Koert was no match for George School's 132-pounder Brian Small, losing an 11-1 decision.

The loss dropped Hun below .500 to 2-3.

HUN WINS FIRST

Then Loses to Nottingham. Hun School won its first basketball game for first-year coach Pat Kahny last week, nipping Pingry, 53-51, in overtime, and then bowed to Nottingham, 58-51, Friday in its first home game of the season.

The bane of Hun's play so far in the young season — inconsistency — cropped up again against Nottingham. "We were up and down," said Kahny." There were periods when we looked great and periods when we looked awful. Even though it was their first game, we were throwing the ball away at the offensive end more than Nottingham was."

The Hun defense was more than adequate, in Kahny's view ("that just takes guts and hard work") but the offense, he said, needs work.

Trailing Nottingham, which was playing its first game of the season under new coach Pete Leonard, Hun regained the lead in the third period off an 8-2 spurt triggered by its high-scoring player, Keith Green.

That lasted only a moment. Nottingham opened its largest lead when it countered with 13 unanswered points for a 43-31 margin. Neither team, both coaches agreed later, seemed to be in control.

"They forced us to shoot from outside and teams are going to do that until we shoot consistently," commented Kahny. Bob "Bubba" Salasko, who Kahny described as "probably our best outside shooter" had six points against Nottingham.

As he has in every game so far, Green led Hun's attack with 24 points. Point guard Chris Mackin, who drew mixed praise from Kahny for some great plays ("but he also made some bad plays"), had eight points. Tony Martelloni added seven.

Against Pingry earlier, Kahny admitted that it was nice to get that first win. "We were winning the entire game," he recalled, "when they hit a jumper with five seconds left." That tied the score at 49 and sent the game into overtime.

Pingry scored the first basket in overtime but Tom Jingoli's basket tied the score again and Green followed with the game-winner.

Green paced Hun with 22 points, while Jingoli had 12 and Martelloni eight.
